10 reasons why you should buy an Ipod nano

By Paul Wilson

A trendsetter and expensive is what the ipod nano is to most people. It makes a statement that I have arrived and I appreciate technology to the fullest. To some it is just another music player to others it is the best.

Here are a few reasons why you may want one:

1. It is pencil thin and can fit into your wallet along with other paraphernalia.
2. Imagine a space of 2GB or 4 GB---this means you can store from 500-1000 songs. Pure listening pleasure.
3. The click wheel and color display take music towards new horizons---plays 14 hours of music.
4. Carries photos, pod casts, and audio books. You can navigate through many photographs using the click wheel. Photos can be transferred and synced with a folder using the itunes softwear.
5. The ipod can be accessorized using the dock connector and head phone jack. So music follows you around at home, in the car, and even while walking or running. Where ever you go the ipod will follow.
6. Its feather weight and so easy to lug around. The screen does not crack or break easily contrary to fears. However the ipod is not scratch or stain proof.
7. Synchronized with iTunes and the iTunes Music Store, the ipod can access the world's largest selection of music.
8. The pod has a state of the art processor, system performance, and flash memory. The technology is such that it never skips.
9. The system requirements are everyday, either a MAC OS x 10.3.4 with aUSB port or Windows

2000 SP4 or windows XP.

10. Music is your whole life and pure unadulterated sound is something to die for.

Expensive, the ipod retails at US$199 for 2GB and US$249 for 4 GB. But it sets the trend and gives a vision of what music heaven can be.

Choose PSP over iPod?

By Maria Joura

We all love to have fun. Let's enter the world of fun. These days when you go to the store there is a huge variety of portable devices that have similar functions. However they do differ in design, colour, weight and functions to some extent. I chose the 2 devices that are very similar in functions PSP and iPod. For those of you who do not know PSP stands for play station portable. For both of them you can listen to music, look at pictures and watch video.

Well for iPod the videos need to be musical clips, whereas PSP supports all the movies such as the "Ring". The one big difference is PSP supports games and is able to accept special disks. PSP has built in speakers that allow you not to use headphones, but for iPod you have to go and get standing speakers. PSP is larger and heavier than iPod, but it does have a larger screen and game controller. Though I must admit it is pretty slim and fits in most inside jacket pockets. PSPs like iPods come with different cases to protect surfaces. Now let's talk about the iPod, well there is a whole family of them shuffle the smallest one, iPod nano and that just iPod. Let's concentrate on the latest version since it has a video function.

It is very slim and fits about anywhere from suitcase to a shirt pocket. They come with leather or rubber cases. The iPod has a very delicate surface and required to be in a case 24/7. The iPod has a remote in a shape of a bagel that can be used with one thumb to stop, pause, play, go to menu and even change volume. You will be able to experience music videos, listen to a variety of music that you can download and then upload to your iPod. You can always create play list on the go and enjoy looking at pictures of your friends while traveling to your destination.

Let me track back to PSP the game experience is unforgettable. The minute you get on to the subway or train and turn on your PSP you enter a world of action and fun. The headphones allow you to experience the sound for every action. Like they say in physics for every action there is a reaction. Do not take me wrong i am not trying to persuade you for either PSP or iPod. I mean it very much depends if you love games and watching movie or just music and looking at pictures. I personally love the game experience, because it kills time during the travel, i would personally go for the more functional one. Ok now i am going to leave you to decide which device fits your personality.
