8 Tell-Tale Signs That Forecast Writing Success!

by: Jennifer Brown Banks

Talent is cheaper than table salt. What separates the talented individual from the successful one is a lot of hard work. Stephen King

Ever wonder what the hands of fate will deal you in the way of success as a writer? Or why some individuals reap the rewards of literary recognition, while others fail and fade into anonymity?

Just as highway signs alert travelers of their impending destination, there are give-away indicators that point to the road to success for writers.

Here are checkpoints that reveal you're in the literary fast lane! You're Playing the Field— The more genres of writing you apply your talents to, the greater the odds of continued publication and pay. I began my journalistic journey over a decade ago, writing poetry and greeting card verse.

What I discovered was that poetry (although my first love), was not very marketable. As a result, these efforts alone met with very little success until I decided to try feature writing for magazines. This change in strategy not only allowed me to establish publishing credits and an impressive portfolio, but also financed the self-publication of 3 volumes of poetry chapbooks and opened avenues for paid performances and open mike competitions as well.

Jennifer Brown Banks— 8 Tell-Tale Signs & You're an Avid Reader— It is virtually impossible to become a marketable writer without reading and studying prominent writers and various styles of expression. Whether you're a member of a local book club, subscribe to a few on-line publications, or regularly escape through a good Harlequin Romance, you're moving in the right direction! Being an avid reader helps you expand your vocabulary, become familiar with different writing styles, and understand the needs of your audience. You're Self-Disciplined— Unlike other professions and industries, writing is by and large a do it yourself success story; there is no delegating or getting by on other team members strength. It's either sink or swim! You establish your own goals, develop your own game plan, and assume sole responsibility for your career. Successful writers go the distance by making writing a priority, honing their craft and persevering through rejection. You Understand that Writing is a Business– Far too many writers fail to recognize that writing is a business. One that requires much more than creativity and a command of the Kings English. To achieve professional status, one must have marketing savvy, time management skills, analytical ability, research knowledge and familiarity with the industry. It also requires putting money back into the business by investing in trade related materials such as the Writers Market, computer equipment and business cards (to name a few things).

Jennifer Brown Banks– 8 Tell-Tale Signs& You Recognize the Importance of Critiquing– Whether its through a writers group, a mentor, a college professor, or people whom you admire and trust. Getting an outside, objective analysis of your work can mean the difference between rejection and perfection. Just as love is blind, many of us are far too close to what weve created to see flaws or gaps in what were trying to convey. You Know the Meaning of Working Smart– At least 50% of my writing income is generated from resales. The well fed writer realizes the potential to resell and represent the same pieces many times over just by changing the slant and minor details, and by negotiating rights. Youre Navigating the Information Super Highway. Do you Google? Are you able to successfully research, review writers web sites, and submit work via the Internet? Doing so decreases down time, increases productivity, and puts you in the fast lane to creativity. Check out the following writers E-zines to enhance your bottom line: Absolute Write Newsletter– useful insiders tips, motivational quotes, contests, conferences and more. It also serves to support and promote the works of female authors.

A great book to also help you improve your surfing savvy is 300 Incredible Things to Do on the Internet by Ken Leebow. You Write for the Love of It!– Do you practically eat, sleep and drink writing? Love to communicate and connect? In this field, perhaps more so than any other, passion precedes success. Having the desire to educate, entertain and empathize through the written word is indeed a noble ambition. And it is this philosophy that will allow you to persevere and avoid road rage in your daily travels!

Forex Forecasts – You Never Know What You Will Benefit From

By Kevin Anderson

Possible risks and profits to be made can always be predicted if traders would only have more accurate forex forecast to base their trade and decisions upon. Forex forecasts are only one way of keeping up with the volatile forex market. Success will depend the most in knowing what and who will affect the rate changes.

The forex market has already been through a lot of ups and downs that even fortune tellers would have difficulty guessing what will be its next movement. Making a forex forecast can be helpful but can also be too risky. Besides, doing it is not that easy also.

In forex forecasts, nothing specific is given. The traders are not made to hope high and expect more. If you have seen or heard a forex forecast, be sure to check on some projected rate fluctuations whenever and wherever possible so you would have an idea if the forex forecast shows a likely possibility to be true or not.

Staying in touch and up–to–date with the latest news and happenings around the globe and information about the forex currency can help traders determine when is the best time to buy, sell and stay away from a particular market. All these things are important in the performance of your trade. Take note of some forex forecasts if only to serve as guide whenever you are in a situation that you find hard to make a decision upon.

How can one benefit from forex forecasts?

8 Tell-Tale Signs That Forecast Writing Success!

There are some companies that are offering forex forecast information as a subscription that traders can avail of. For those who do not have enough patience and browse for information in the internet, this forex forecast information would be their alternative.

No one said that there is a 100% accuracy in these forex forecasts. And no one told traders that they should also believe them 100%. If you want to have more degree of accuracy in the forex forecast, you could always find one with the most accurate percentage rate.

You could look for something or someone that offers free information or a trail period for you to test the degree of their ability to give accurate forecast about the forex market. There are also some sites that send out forex forecast to emails that you may want to try out just so you will choice to choose from if you decide to avail the services of some of them.

Relying only on one forex forecast is not the thing to do. You should at least have some more choices in the process of making an investment decision. Try to get more forex forecast from sources that are rampant online and offline so you would not stick to just one.

The thing to remember is that your investments are your future and you have already worked too hard to just let it all down the drain. Do not put the future of your forex trade into the hands of only person. Try to get several forex forecast and choose the best one that you think has great ounces of accuracy up their sleeves.

Before putting the future of your investments into the hands of those offering forex forecasts, make it a point to check out the latest that is happening in the forex trading and see if the trend is likely to go with what the predictions are telling about.

If you think more about it, people doing forex forecasts would not be out there giving bad forecasts because their reputation is the one at stake there. They surely would not want to ruin the image they have by giving false predictions about things that they know people will listen to, would they?

Like they say, traders should not believe all that is written in forex forecasts. Some but not all. There are still decisions to be made that will be based upon the trader itself and no amount or accuracy of forex forecasts can make that decision for them.

Just to be on the right side of things, always make sure and do your own research that will back up the forex forecast you actually think is going to work. You never know what it will lead to...
