8 proven methods to get one way links for your website

By Mac Nix

One way links are very important to get top 10 rankings on search engines. Now Google gives very low importance to reciprocal links as it can easily understand this has been done just to boost search engine rankings and nothing else.

A lot of time people ask me how can i get one way links for my website. In that case i suggest them the following methods to acquire natural one way links:

1 – Write articles– Write meaningful and informational articles on your website so that other people who find you article useful may link to you from their websites. This is one of the best and proven way to get natural one way links.

2 – Blogging – Partcipitae in blogs at other sites or create a blog on your website and post latest news on this blog and discuss it with other people and this again let other sites link to you. Very soon you will find the listing of your blog in lot of other blogs plus other informational sites will also not hestiate in linking you from their website.

3 – Directory Submission – Submit your site to free directories like Dmoz as listing in Dmoz is of great importance. Apart form dmoz there are various other small and big free directories where you can submit your site. This helps you in getting links from subject related to your website. Some other free directories are freeaddurl.org, monkey-directory.com,raptor-uk.com dreamz.mylinea.com, isins.com, ofidir.com.

4 – Forum Participation – Start taking active particiaption in forums that interst you most or on forums that relate to the subject of your website. You can leave a signature in your forum posts which may contain the url of your website with your main keywords in it.

5 – Submit your news and press release – Whenever anything big goes on your site than you can submit your news or press release to other sites that actively publish news of other sites. Like if you are a hosting company and you have launched a new hosting package which is better than others than submit the press release on hosting related sites which accept press releases. This not only provides you inbound link but also brings a lot of traffic to your website.

6 – Free Downloads – If you have developed any softwares or if you are able to create any software utilities, scripts, then you can provide them free on your website and this again makes other people to link to your website. You may also request people who download from your site to link to your website so that you can provide them more related and improved stuff in future.

7– Extra Services – If you provide any service to people who own a website than you can ask them to link to your website and in return you can provide them some extra or value added service or extended support with your services. This can be of great interest to most of your clients as everybody loves a thing that comes as free .

8 – Add testimonials – Another added way to get links is to submit testimonials on websites from where you have purchased any services or products as webmasters may publish your testimonials on their website which may also contain the link of your site.

How To Obtain Residual Income For Your Website

By Brice Mattson

Residual income is income that is generated again and again from one initial endeavor or investment. You can get five streams of residual income with your website by implementing the following methods.

Selling advertising space on your website is a great way to create a stream of residual income. This is an easy way to collect residual income because you set up advertising one time on your website and collect monthly revenue from advertisers.

Another stream of residual income can be obtained through website affiliates. Affiliate programs offering commission for products sold through your website can be quite profitable. The work is minimal, and multiple sales originating from links on your website can generate a flowing stream of residual income.

Residual income can be gained if you have a great amount of knowledge to share. Your website can be a source of that knowledge, and website members can pay to join your membership program. Residual income is gained over and over when new members join and old members renew their subscription.

8 proven methods to get one way links for your website

Referrals are another stream of residual income that can be generated from your website. Locate and procure business links related to the subject of your website, and arrange to earn commission for helping businesses gain new customers. When websites referred by your website gain new business, you gain a profit.

Pay-per-click links can also bring in a good stream of residual income. Look for pay-per-click links related to the subject of your website. Those interested in your website will likely be interested in your pay-per-click website links.

These five streams of residual income when added to your website can bring in unlimited income with little effort. Get five streams of residual income, and make your website work for you.
