Accident Solicitor – You're Not Alone Anymore

By Mohammad Latif

All accident solicitors should be on your side. Be cautious to which ones you choose otherwise the compensation payout could be in their pocket!

How many times did you feel cheated or abused by companies which had used any available trick to gain your claim? Are you tired with all the sale tricks and sophisticated jargon? Well, you don't have to deal with it on your own anymore! An accident solicitor will take care of your case.

Their job is to guide you through the meanders of law and help you claim your legal compensation. A solicitor can help you with your accident claim and solve your problems much easier and faster than if you tried to do it by yourself. Step by step, shall the specialists guide you through the process of claiming your compensation: injury assessment, medical reports, court case and final agreement.

And how much will you pay for all of it? Zero!

No win – no fee!

What would be the use of an accident solicitor if you had to pay him for nothing, especially when it wasn't your fault? It's even more an important question if you can't work and fees are an issue. You need to use a service based on 'no win no fee' agreement. It simply means that if you lose your case, you don't pay anything. And it's gets better: if you win, you gain all the compensation and the fee is recovered from the third party! This solution is both comfortable and safe for you.

Not only you don't pay the fee, but all the process of your claim is taken care off as well. Fees and bills are taken care off. From the initial contact to the final accident compensation settlement – you get all of it for free. No small print, no strings attached!

In Black And White

What's the use of an advisor if you don't understand what they're saying? Solicitors should explain all the nuances of the case in simple English, without any annoying jargon. Without catches or tricks, you get 100% of your accident compensation and they should take all the risk. Fees are paid only if your case is won and it is paid by the losers or their insurance company. An accident solicitor also pays all the costs of medical reports, court fees and any other expenses – none of these are deducted from your compensation. It is really that easy!

No Work – No Money?

If the accident results you being unable to work, the accident compensation may be the only money you can count on, so it's twice as important to claim it. You don't have to leave with empty pockets. Also, as being injured, dealing with the bureaucracy is even harder and more troublesome than usual. Why would you bother with the problems all by yourself? This is when an accident solicitor comes in to help.

No Stress!

Accidents themselves are painful enough, so do you really want to add the inconvenience of handling everything on your own? Let them do the work – they are the professionals and they should be there for you.

The perspective of a court case is never pleasant but with the help of an accident claim solicitor it may be avoided. If both sides agree with the accident facts, the claim can be settled without any court action, which makes it much faster and less inconvenient. What's also very important, the service prepared should be streamlined to make it comfortable as possible for you as a client. All the work should be done for you, so you don't have to worry about anything.

Any Doubts?

If you have any questions about the services of an accident solicitor, just ask them. Asking questions will make the path clear for you.

Personal Injury Solicitor – 5 Things To Consider Before Choosing

By Mumtaz Shah

Making sure you have the right personal injury solicitor to represent you in your accident compensation claim is vital. However, with so many people claiming to be accident compensation solicitors, how can you possibly know which accident claim solicitor is going to be the best one for you?

Simple, ask the following 5 questions:

1. Is The Personal Injury Specialist Qualified To Handle Your Accident Claim?

May sound rather like a silly question, but today most solicitors elect to specialise in particular areas of law. As such, you need to make sure your solicitor specialises in accident injury claims before you appoint them.

Keep in mind that if your chosen accident claim solicitor does not specialise in this particular area of law then they are unlikely to know what the current trends in the law are and this could end up costing you money. Moreover, the area of law dealing with accidents tends to be highly specialised - requiring certain medical terminology skills.

Again, if your solicitor is not aware of these, it could end up costing you! So, before agreeing to hire an accident solicitor, make sure you ask if he/she has current experience in this area of law. You may even want to ask if their law firm has a specialised accident injury department. If they don't, you should possibly consider going to another law firm that does.

2. Is Your Personal Injury Solicitor Taking Any Charges From You?

When you and your accident claim solicitor sign a Conditional Fee Agreement (CFA) you want to make sure that in the agreement the solicitor is going to claim for all of their fees and expenses from the opponent and not from any accident compensation you receive.

If the solicitor gives you any problems here, don't hire them and remind them of the Access to Justice Act which permits them to claim all reasonable costs from the other party!

3. Out-Of-Pocket Expenses?

Most personal injury solicitors love to include a clause in the CFA that you are going to be responsible for all out-of-pocket expenses. Out-of-pocket expenses can include any medical treatment you receive at the request of your accident compensation solicitor, any overtime incurred by the solicitor's staff, telephone and fax charges, etc.

The solicitor should be responsible for these costs which should be re-claimed from your opponent. However, be warned: the courts will only allow you to claim 'reasonable' costs and only on the basis of you winning your case.

4. Is The Accident Compensation Solicitor Aiming To Settle Or Go To Court?

Sometimes, though not always, solicitors don't listen to the wishes of their clients and instead go after what they believe the law entitles their client to claim. As such, if you want to settle the claim, rather than go to court, you should ask your accident claim solicitor whether they have any objection to such.

Conversely, if you want to go to court, but your solicitor is advising that you settle the claim, you should discuss this with them to see if there are any adverse effects for taking your accident compensation claim to court.

5. What Happens If You Lose?

Solicitors are expensive - so what happens if you lose? You need to ask this question of your accident claim solicitor to see if he/she is willing to insure your claim against the chances that you may lose.

Keep in mind that if you do lose it is not your personal injury solicitor who is going to be reasonable for the fees and expenses that have accrued to–date, but you! And you don't want to be the victim of the same accident twice, so don't listen to any discussions about how you cannot lose and make sure you have adequate protection should the impossible actually happen!
