

All Lawns are not the same: Choosing your grass wisely

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

All Lawns are not the same: Choosing your grass wisely

By David Nelson

All yards are not the same: Choosing your grass wisely

First of all, you should determine what your ideal yard will look like, as grasses can vary in color, leaf width, characteristic and growth density. Each little blade adds up! Second, you must consider how much time and money you really are ready to spend on your lawn. The higher the maintenance lawn, the more you will need to put into it. This is a very important factor. Third, your specific growing conditions will affect which seed you should choose. Things like the amount of sun, shade, rain, soil type, humidity and moisture can affect how your lawn grows. Finally, what will you be using your lawn for? Your investment may differ if you lawn is a play area or for show, or even for erosion control.

First things first. Before you can care for a lawn, you must plant one. And, there are several things to keep in mind when choosing what type of grass seed to purchase. This is because that grass seed can grow into very different lawns. This difference could mean a lawn filled with pests and weeds, or one that is low maintenance and looks great. Here are some factors that you should take in consideration while in the seed aisle at your local home and garden store.

Once you determine these needs, you will be armed with the information you need to make you decision on your seed. It all grows up from there! And, if it grows, it must be mowed.

Visit the

Lawn Care

Today

<http://www.lawncarebook.info>

to Master the Art of lawn care!

The Grass Is Greener With The Right Lawnmower

By Martha Mountjoy

Choosing a lawnmower is different than other things that be purchased for the home or the yard. They can be used in many different types of conditions. A lawnmower has to be catered to the type of grass that you will be cutting. You probably wouldn't want a riding mower for your small backyard and you, more than likely, wouldn't use a compact push mower to mow the back acres of your ranch.

The most important aspect of choosing the right lawnmower is finding out what type of cutting you will be doing. The types of grass can be different as well but knowing the size of the lawn is key. Smaller lawns generally use smaller mowers but make sure when choosing a mower that the turn radius is sharp enough. Do you have a fence, a tree box, bushes, where you will need a mower that can cut sharp angles? Know the dimensions and obstacles in your lawn and which mower can move around them.

Depending on the size of your lawn you can get a push mower and a riding mower. If you have a very big lawn then a riding mower may be a good option as sometimes push mowers can be bad on the back if they are used for long stretches of time. But if you really want the exercise there are push mowers which are better on the back than others, so make sure you check out the different models.

One thing to know before purchasing a mower is if you want to bag the grass as it is cut or afterwards. If you have a smaller lawn than a bagged mower is a good option as it bags up all the grass as it is cut. On larger lawns the bags can become full quicker and slow the mower down.

So know the size of your lawn and pick the lawnmower that will suit it, and you, best. You can also ask a professional at a lawnmower retailer as they should ask you what kind of lawn you have before buying the lawnmower.

lawnmowers-choice.com gives advice on

<http://www.lawnmowers-choice.com>

,

<http://www.lawnmowers-choice.com/mowerarts/index.html>

and

<http://www.lawnmowers-choice.com/electric.lawnmowers/index.html>

This PDF eBook is for free information distribution/sharing only, it cannot be sold.

All Lawns are not the same: Choosing your grass wisely

This Free E-Book has been brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!