Awaken Your Inner Winner

Dear Colleague,

And open mind is a free mind.

Your Inner winner emerges as you open your mind to new ideas. If you close your mind to new ideas, concepts and people, you are locking a door that imprisons your own mentality.

Awaken Your Inner Winner

When you lock your mind down with your prejudices you lock the doors to your success. Intolerance cuts off the flow of ideas between your subconscious mind and your conscious mind.

Nearly 100 years ago, the Wright brothers decide to invent a flying machine. History records how they were ridiculed by the majority. It was a closed minds that ridiculed.

However, they listened to the Inner Winner. Your Inner

Winner is a voice that encourages you to try and try again. Your Inner Winner will have courage in the face of ridicule. It is one pointed and focused on your success.

An open mind is the very key to the science of success.

If you are working on a project and you seem to be stuck, then form a brainstorming partnership with at least one other friend. Bring them in on your problem.

Ask for help!

Ask for a brainstorming session. Put the power of two or more brains to work on the situation. The Wright brothers succeeded because they put the power of more than one brain into their dream.

What is your dream? What are you trying to "get off the ground?"

Find someone with an open mind and engage in a brainstorming session.

You will discover that brainstorming forces your Inner Winner to come to the surface. The more you use it, the more it will work to assist you.

Successfully Yours,

CNN Anchor Kyra Phillips Turns Bad Press Into A Win...

By Kim Klaver

How do you come out a winner when the bad press you get is national and it's all over the Internet in 24 hours?

A winner is someone like Kyra Phillips, CNN anchor who accidentally took a microphone into the bathroom and then went on David Letterman to redeem herself.

Her reaction was on a scale with the bad press she got: national.

No matter where the bad press comes from, from the local paper to the national media, you can come out a winner if you adopt a transparent attitude, a sense of humor, if you're authentic and if you have confidence.

Everyone goofs up once in a while. Companies also goof up once in a while. Maybe they overhyped the product, as a local paper accused Mannatech of doing.

But that accusation, even if true, doesn't change what the product has done for anyone over the past 10 years, does it?

Hype and promises can kill good products.

Stick with YOUR story and the stories you know. That's all I'd need. After all, everyone says their science and technology is the best. What matters first to me is whether it WORKS for me. Everything else is either second or irrelevant.

P.S. Silly comments like "It's just a sugar pill" are usually from people with an agenda or axe to grind, on a par with "Oh, it's just pond scum." Like "the iPod is just another fad gadget," from the lips of a competitor.

Kim Klaver is Harvard & Stanford educated. Her 20 years experience in network marketing have resulted in a popular blog,
