Becoming A Police Officer, Firefighter & Postal Worker Just Became Easier

By Donna Moran

With the economy the way it is today, large numbers of people, both young and old are looking for a long term career which has some stability. The most common of which are police officers, firefighters, and postal employees. In the past many of these job-seekers would merely fill out an application in order to take an entrance exam, and then blindly go take the exam without really knowing or having an idea what to expect. Some would purchase generic books from their local bookstores, only to find out that the material covered was not even close to their exam.

Well that all has changed thanks to a new innovative company. Enter CareerQuiz Inc. (

<http://www.careerquizinc.com>

). For a small charge CareerQuiz Inc. prepares its members for thousands of law enforcement exams, firefighter exams, and postal exams throughout the country. What makes CareerQuiz Inc. different from other similar businesses is that that they target the specific agency that you are applying for. Depending on the agency that the job-seeker is looking for, CareerQuiz Inc. presents that person with up-to-date study materials and online practice exams to assist the test taker come exam day.

According to Augie Caamano, Jr. founder of CareerQuiz Inc. "Apart from being our main business, there is a great sense of satisfaction to see all of these men and women completing our study programs and getting the positions they're seeking. I enjoy reading e-mails from past members who have been sworn in to their agencies or accepted positions as a result of our online preparation programs."

A look at CareerQuizInc.com quickly conveys to the visitor their commitment to online test preparation. The web portal quickly allows you to choose which field you are targeting, and depending on your selection directs you to one of three sites, either PoliceQuiz.com, FireQuiz.com or MailQuiz.com. Once a selection is made you are instantly taken to that prep site to choose the actual agency you are targeting. PoliceQuiz.com and FireQuiz.com both list over 4,800 agencies for every state and territory in the U.S.

Caamano states "We would not have thousands of members throughout the country if we did not know the testing business. I'm so sure that we can help, that I offer every member a money back guarantee that they pass the exam on their first try. Therefore, our members have nothing to lose, and everything to gain by preparing for their respective exams at CareerQuiz Inc."

For a modest one-time modest fee of only $24.95, CareerQuiz Inc. provides it's members with hundreds of sample practice questions, along with test strategies and tips. They also provide all members the opportunity to communicate with past members who have already taken their entrance exam, and who may be able to provide better insight as to what to expect.

When asked if he would expand his service to other types of entrance exams, Caamano stated "We only want to prepare our members for exams that we know and have researched. Our subject matter experts carefully screen exams throughout the country so that our members have the best possible opportunity to pass that first critical step in the hiring process".

How To Avoid Getting A Speeding Ticket

By Jackson Jones

When you're driving on a highway, remember to stay within a group of other cars. This makes it much more difficult for a police officer to pick you off, as you aren't speeding in front of everyone.

Be aware of your surroundings. Remember to scan the road ahead of you, looking for any places where a police officer could be hiding.

Make sure you know the speed limit of the area you're driving in. Keep a look out for any traffic signs that tell you the current speed limit.

Always keep you car in good condition. For example, if you have a tail light out, you are going to be noticed much easier by a police officer, as they are looking out for these kinds of things. Make sure you spend the few dollars it costs to keep your car in good repair.

If you do get stopped by a police officer, always be polite. If you are rude in any way they will have something else against you. Also, try not to volunteer too much information. Obviously you have to answer his questions, but don't add to much...just answer the question.

The first question the police officer will most likely ask you is if you know why you have been stopped. At this point, you have three options to choose from.

Firstly, you can completely admit that you were speeding. The officer would appreciate this, as this is what he wants. The officer may let you off with just a warning.

The down side to answering in this way is that if you're given a speeding ticket, and admitted that you were speeding then it can and will be used against you in the court. The police officer will be taking notes on everything you say to him, so if you feel that you will definitely get a speeding ticket then you should avoid directly admit to the police officer that you were speeding.

The second option you have is to deny that you were speeding. Keep in mind that this approach is going to create some tension between you and the police officer. If you don't have a good argument to prove to the police officer that you weren't speeding, he will still give you a ticket.

The upside to this, however, is if you deny speeding, you have a better chance of beating the ticket when it goes to court, because you denied speeding from the outset.

The third option you have is to neither admit nor deny the fact you were speeding. Often this approach will work best. When you are stopped and asked if you know why you were stopped act as if you don't know why. When he tells you that you were speeding, tell the officer in a calm and respectful force that you just didn't notice...and give a plausible excuse.
