Chasing Shadows! A Dream

By Arthur Zulu

Chasing Shadows! A Dream by Arthur Zulu

I feel the earth under my feet shake, and the explosions deafen my ears. Day change to night as the thick dark smoke obscures visibility for hours. And I begin to see death with my naked eyes. But after all the shootings and bombings, the smoke clears at last. And we expect to see seven dead devils: Hatred, Oppression, Frustration, Injustice, Mistrust, Fear, and Enmity.

But there they are laughing and falling over themselves. And the kings, Sunrise and Sunset, are full of wonderment. What sight is this? they ask. Did not the winged-man in white say to wipe out these devils? Or are these not the weapons that destroy spirits? What are they to do now with all their bombs, missiles, and bullets expended?

When the seven spirits finish their laughters and free falls, Hatred, their leader, comes to address the kings. First, he says that the kings have used the wrong weapons. For neither guns nor bombs can kill the seven deadly spirits. Second, he tells them that these seven deadly spirits that they are trying to destroy live in their various lands. And they are the dangerous parents of Inferno, the terrorist. So he wonders why they had spent time and money looking for their son, Inferno, while he is right in their midst. He then turns it into a question- and- answer section, and demands that both kings reply him.

"Do you not hate, oppress, and frustrate each other?" he asks. "We do," reply the kings. "Do you not cause injustice, and mistrust, and fear each other?" he further asks. "We do," the kings answer again. "Are you not in enmity with each other?" is the next question by Hatred to the two kings. And they answer: "We are."

The vexed Hatred, King of the seven deadly spirits, now asks, "Do you know the meaning of the word hypocrisy?" The kings look at each other again in confusion, and I remember my dictionary a second time. As to this question, there is no answer.

The questions and answers now end, and Hatred makes a long speech beginning with a question:

Chasing Shadows! A Dream

"Why do you then make war at us with your guns and bombs? You should instead have proceeded to eradicate the political, economic, social, religious, health, and environmental problems that are bedeviling the world. People are fighting for political freedom, some are sick and hungry, and there is racial and class discrimination, religious strife, including land, sea, and air pollution in your lands.

"These are the very things that cause hatred, oppression, frustration, injustice, mistrust, fear, and enmity, which make Inferno, our son, to terrorize you. But remove the causes of all these cankerworms, and you will see that we will not exist anymore, and Inferno will not attack your lands. Then the world will be like The Golden City. It is only then that you will have Love, Peace, Freedom, Justice, Equality, Dignity, and Trust.

"That was what the winged-man in white meant when he said to destroy us. The man speaks in parables. Now, you are chasing shadows fighting the effect instead of the cause, the symptom and not the disease. Since you did not understand, or refused to understand the meaning of the message, and come shooting and bombing at us the wrong targets instead of solving the world's problems, we are going to give you double trouble."

Going on, Hatred tells the kings of Orient and Occident to prepare for the last war. Because they have caused more problems than solutions for themselves with their weapons. Because war is not the road map for peace. And because man himself is the problem, and not the solution.

Then the bombshell! He says that the kings should gather all their cinema, film, and moviemakers, and ask them to suggest apocalyptic scenarios. For the world is going to end with the worst case ever imagined. The world, he says, is now a more dangerous place than it was before Operation Hell Fire and the search for weapons of mass destruction. Finally, Hatred, the leader of the seven devils, says that the belligerent kings, Sunrise and Sunset, have sown wind in the country of the Devil, and must therefore reap the Devil's whirlwind. After saying this, he disappears with the other deadly spirits, laughing. . . .

Earthquake Diplomacy

Earthquake Diplomacy

Relief materials cannot bring peace (Satire)

It is good to send aid to quake victims. But it cannot stop the terrorists and the nukes.

Chasing Shadows! A Dream

What the people of Bam didn't suffer in the hands of the leaders of the 'rogue state' of Iran, was inflicted on them by an earthquake. So the city of about 80,000 souls had her population reduced by half by the fateful hand of 'nature.' But I am not going to talk of miracles. Like the unearthing of a man in a closet after two weeks. No, the doctors had better explain that.

I am only interested in how this member of the infamous 'Axis of Evil' suddenly became the beloved country after the disaster.

Not that this was the only sin of Iran. Back in the day, the country had taken hostage of Americans. This Islamic state had also been guilty of gross human rights violations. And it is fingered to be hiding nukes—make it weapons of mass destruction. This is besides the several alleged terrorists' hideouts in that 'outlaw regime.' But now, thank God for the earthquake. Because what man would neither achieve by declaring the Year of Peace nor by praying for peace in Rome, is going to be brought about by the maddening of the earth.

There was general sympathy for Iran after the quake. All the country's enemies came to her rescue. Even one of her obdurate enemies sent large sums of money, relief materials and disaster management experts to Iran. That country even planned to send a high level representative to Iran, but this was randomly rebuffed.

The UN was not left in the show of support. It has already gone up cap in hand begging for millions of dollars to help Iran. Perhaps, this prodigal son will gain sanity and return someday. Who knows. Perhaps even Iraq would be a better place to live after the hanging of Saddam who was found hiding in a spider hole the other day. Who knows. Perhaps North Korea would stop playing hide and seek, and start playing ball someday—like Libya. Who knows. And then we would hold hands together and start shouting, Peace and Security!

But wait. All this talk about a peaceful world free of weapons of mass destruction and terrorists, is pure crap. Because there will always be nukes and 9/11's. The reason is that we have not asked the right questions. (What causes terrorism?) Neither do we know the solution. (How can we prevent it?) This is the message that I am trying to get out to whoever cares to listen with my book CHASING SHADOWS! : A Dream, published by 1stbooks.com.

It is my desire that the controversy generated by the publication of the book would lead to solving the world's political, economic, social, religious, and environmental problems that breed this monster. Then we would have prevented the sinking of this planet.

Earthquake diplomacy by relief materials cannot bring world peace. Some call it chasing shadows.
