Cheap Child Health Insurance – Some Helpful Sources

By Jessica Farrell

One common concern that parents all face is the health of their children. For parents who don't have a health care plan, this can lead to an almost constant state of worry.

Children all face medical needs at some point. It may be something as simple as requiring a few stitches or the filling of a cavity. When medical care is needed the parent's last concern should be how they will pay for it.

Most states actually offer free or very low cost health insurance for children. The cost of this insurance is largely dependent on the parents' financial situation. If the parents cannot adequately provide health insurance for their child, the state will step in. Doctor visits, dental care and prescription eyeglasses are a few examples of what is covered.

For parents whose incomes don't qualify them for this type of health coverage for their child, there are other avenues for them. Some of these don't immediately come to mind and in fact some people aren't aware of them at all.

Just as many employers offer health care plans to their employees and families, other organizations do the same thing. Many professional organizations have affordable health plans that cover their members and the dependents of the members.

Some religious groups also offer this type of plan. They establish a health care plan that covers their group members and although premiums are still payable, they are often at a discounted rate. For parents with children, this can be a great way to save money.

Another consideration is the private insurance companies that often offer health insurance to students. This insurance is primarily designed to protect the child in the event of an accident at school but the policy can be expanded to cover any instance. Talk with the insurance agent and express your needs. After all, accommodating their clients is what keeps insurance companies in business.

Cheap Health Insurance rates and personal health insurance.

By Mike Yeager

If you've been out of school for a couple of years or perhaps just graduated from college, you're probably a candidate for cheap health insurance. Once a person reaches a certain age they're no longer covered by their parents health insurance plan. If you're just starting out it's important to find cheap health insurance coverage. If you've just graduated from school or just started work and you don't have coverage, don't be tempted to forgo this necessary expense because you never know when an accident can happen. Most people are looking for modest coverage but also want some essentials. Generally, when a person buys their own coverage, they tend to favor high deductibles to save money on the cost of premiums.

Personal health insurance, Cheap Health Insurance and low cost health insurance rates.

Even if you're on a tight, limited budget, it's very important that you pick up some kind of cheap health insurance. Even if you only have a plan that covers unexpected hospitalization, your peace of mind will be greatly enhanced. Keep in mind that a catastrophic health insurance policy can come with a high deductible before their coverage kicks in. They don't pick up the cost of preventive physician visits or emergency room visits to get a few stitches.

Some questions to ask when considering cheap health insurance.

- 1) Can your and/or your family afford to pay ALL your medical expenses if you're sick or injured?
- 2) How much is the deductible?
- 3) Can you afford the deductible?

With a little searching and comparison shopping you find the best rate for your personal cheap health insurance.
