Choosing A Vintage Style Engagement Ring

By Peter Wilson

Vintage style engagement rings are a popular choice for brides who love the romantic Victoria era or the ornate settings of antique design. Vintage style engagement rings can be true antiques or they can be modern creations fashioned after the old style rings of another era. Finding a Vintage Style Engagement Ring There are jewellery designers who will create a vintage style engagement ring for you from a new design. They may already have several on display or in their portfolio from which you can choose. However, if you want to find a genuine antique diamond ring, you can often find them at estate sales and auctions.

The Internet has made accessing estate sales and auctions from all around the world easily accessible to couples anywhere. You need to be careful of some online auctions and choose to deal only with the most well-known and reputable auction sites. You are dealing with an expensive item that could easily be represented as something it is not online. Good auction sites with authenticate it's buyers and sellers and provide a means for users to rate and comment on the goods and services they have received.

If you find a vintage style setting at an auction or estate sale and don't think the diamond is up the size or quality, it is easy enough to replace it with a new diamond of your choice. Since diamonds can be purchased as loose stones, separate from any setting, you don't need to limit your purchase of a vintage style engagement ring simply because you don't like the stone.

You don't even need to limit yourself to rings that were previously engagement rings. You can choose any ring setting you like and turn it into your own custom engagement ring. Other jewellery works well for this idea too. Large vintage earrings can be fashioned into a ring, have a diamond set it them and then they instantly become one of the most beautiful vintage style engagement rings.

Evaluating Antique Engagement Rings

By Charles Mohaney

Antique engagement rings or a vintage engagement ring is a very popular choice for many people. While some people go with the traditional solitaire, more and more people are looking for new or unique styles. While vintage is not really new, it is unique and it is a popular style now for so many people. More and more women enjoy this style and people are going back to the vintage styles that often contain moe color, more stones and more. So just where can you get your vintage engagement ring?

There are many different places that you can buy vintage jewelry. But you can't just go to your local jewelry store and pick out something new. However, there are antique and vintage styles that are created to look like real vintage jewelry and you can find stores that sell these. There are also other places you can look such as yard sales, estate sales and anywhere else that has older or used jewelry. You will be amazed at some of the great things you can find. Choosing from Antique Engagement Rings There are many different types and styles of vintage engagement rings out there. You may have trouble deciding or choosing what is best for you and your fiancé. If you do not already have a general idea of what you are looking for than it will take some research. You might want to talk to someone who is an expert on the subject to learn more about it and find the right ring.

You need to know what size you are looking for to help you get the right ring. Many vintage style rings can be sized but be sure you find out first. Some can not be sized without damaging the design. If the person you are buying for has a specific style that they like, you can also look for this. You might look according to a certain year or design or by color and stone type. These are all ways of helping you choose the right vintage engagement ring.
