Consider A Budapest Stag Weekend

By Brett Danielson

Along with all the other jobs of the Best Man (you know, making sure your mate actually makes it to the Church on time, remembering the license and the ring since he'll forget it all) is planning the standard send-off from single life into matrimonial bliss – the Stag Do. If that's your job – and you're looking for a stag do idea that's high above standard, you'll need to look a bit further afield than the typical stag weekender tourist cities. Budapest is one of the new stars on the horizon. With the dissolution of the Eastern Bloc, Budapest has emerged from its drab cocoon and metamorphosed into a sparkling butterfly of a city with a great deal to offer any traveler. A stag weekend in Budapest could be just the thing to lift your stag's do above the typical and into the forever memorable.

Budapest stands as the crossroads between the East and West, making it easily one of the most intriguing and alluring cities of the world. In truth, it is three cities in one, created in the late 1800s by the joining of the cities Obuda, Buda and Pest on the banks of the Danube River. Each part of the unique city has its own flavor – and they are all unmistakably European and unabashedly beautiful.

A Budapest stag weekend would be like no other anywhere in the world. Budapest boasts over 80 natural hot springs, and the city's bathhouses offer a full menu of luxurious afternoons for the stag who deserves the kind of pampering he's not likely to see again for a very long time. There's nothing quite like the Bachanalian Spa to provide that sort of pampering – Roman baths, topless masseuses and the simmering, seething waters of the natural spring to heat things up. Budapest's night life is sparkling and varied. From the aptly named and trendy Fantasy Club to the Bohemian Piaf, there's a music style and partying profile to suit any Budapest stag weekend.

The daytime activities in Budapest are just as enticing as Budapest's night-time romp-till-the-sun-comes up parties. With an average of 2,000 hours of sunshine each year (that's about 270 out of 365 days), there's lots of sun-loving, fun-loving outdoor romping to fill up a Budapest stag weekend. The nearby Pills Mountains provide the perfect spot for the adventuresome stag party goers, with off-road karts, trail biking, rally driving and more. If you'd rather be on the water than in the hills, you can rent a party boat to tour the Danube – and bring along your own entertainment in the form of a dancer or four to keep the afternoon lively into the night.

Consider A Budapest Stag Weekend

Budapest is still a relatively undiscovered stag weekend venue, making a Budapest stag weekend one that is truly memorable and unique.

An evening at the Bacchanalian Spa in Budapest is just one example of the kind of stag weekend activity that a professional tour operator can help you arrange. A Budapest Stag Do With An Eastern European Flavour

By Shane Williss

Fancy a stag do with exciting daytime activities and exotic night time adventures that do not burn a hole in your pocket? Yes! This place exists and it goes by the name of Budapest. For a mere 80p, you can get a pint of beer while a hearty meal will just cost you less than £5. Couple this with the service of a Chillisauce stag do operator, you will definitely be bound for some pure fun and lasting memories! Also named as the Paris of the East, Budapest boasts of the Buda section that is the historic section of the city and the Pest, where all the modern malls, clubs and restaurants are located. With a total of 123 thermal springs and a selection of outdoor spas combined with 2000 hours of sunshine each year, your stag do in Budapest will definitely be one of your best experiences ever.

Possible unique daytime activities for a Budapest stag do include a taste of adventure sports in the nearby Pilis Mountains. These would include exciting rally driving experiences, Quad Bike racing and obstacle courses as well as uniquely different thermal spas and exotic Bacchanalian Spas. Unlike the ones in UK, the thermal spas here are located in buildings designed much like castles with fountains and pools of both warm and cold water, as well as bikini clad beauties. These are just perfect for recovery after the heavy booze and hangover from the previous night. Furthermore, other services that complement the thermal spa include steam rooms, sauna and massage services, all of which have been built to cater to your need to relax.
