Costa Rica - Your Next Trip Destination

By Naldo Camarones

>From rainforest jungle retreats to five star resorts, there is something for everyone to enjoy in Costa Rica. Vacationing in Costa Rica will be an experience that you will never forget.

Costa Rica affords the visitor with a myriad of diverse environments all just waiting to be explored. Experience an erupting volcano, relax on a dazzling beach, investigate a cloud forest or witness exotic animals at play in the rainforest. If you enjoy being on the water, Costa Rica offers many river tours, windsurfing opportunities as well as sport fishing charters.

With so many lodging options, it is sometimes hard to choose where to stay when in Costa Rica. If you wish to have an up close view of a volcano, a stay at the Arenal Country Inn would be a wise choice. They have 20 large cabins available, all of which offer a great view of the Arenal volcano. All of the cabins are equipped with air conditioners, private bathrooms and two double beds with orthopedic mattresses. The Inn offers such amenities as separate adult and children's swimming pools, a restaurant and an open bar.

If you desire to experience the serenity that only a rainforest can provide, a stay at the Pacuare Lodge should be your destination. This lodge features private bungalows with private baths and verandas. This unique lodge is completely surrounded by the rainforest, and is situated on the banks of the Pacuare River, which offers a great opportunity for white water rafting.

No matter where you decide to stay, your vacation in Costa Rica will also afford you the chance to sample some of the great dishes available at any of the cafes and finer restaurants scattered throughout Costa Rica. Café Hanna offers a light fare of sandwiches, tea, coffee, croissants, quiches, empanadas and lasagna.

If you prefer a fine dining experience, you are sure to discover one at Nuevo Latino, a superb restaurant featuring authentic Costa Rican dishes such as sea bass with curry and coconut and pork chops with mint pesto.

If you an adventurous individual seeking thrills in Costa Rica, why not opt for a kayaking trip, or maybe some surfing that any of the fine beaches are sure to offer? For those of you with a less than adventurous spirit, you can enjoy exotic bird watching trips, explore the cloud and rainforests, or engage in a canopy tour. A canopy tour allows you to get up close and personal with animals of the rainforest such as sloths, monkeys and birds, and watch them in their natural habitats. Since a majority of the area in Costa Rica has been unspoiled by developers and booming business, Costa Rica is a haven for nature lovers.

Vacationing in Costa Rica will expose you to the best of both worlds; fine lodgings and restaurants, vast shopping opportunities and numerous attractions, as well as the serene, tranquil environment of the rainforest, the unspoiled wonders of the volcanoes and primitive resorts buried so deep in the jungle you'll be lucky to find your way back to civilization!

Traveling In Costa Rica

By Carmen Ross

Costa Rica is full of fascinating things to see and do. When you visit Costa Rica the first thing that you will notice is the friendly environment that permeates every aspect of the society in Costa Rica. And there are not many places on earth that are as beautiful all year round as Costa Rica. In Costa Rica you will be able to sit on the beach and luxuriate under the sun or choose from a variety of adventures that you just cannot find back at home.

If you are staying in Costa Rica you will want to check out all of their fabulous museums. There are over 30 different fantastic museums in Costa Rica and each of them will take your breath away with their amazing artifacts. You will find some of the most fantastic finds in Costa Rica at their museums. These museums are a great way to spend the day when you need a little break from the sun and the beach.

The sun in Costa Rica is powerful so be sure to bring some good sunscreen and a hat, getting sunstroke in Costa Rica is no way to enjoy your vacation.

There are many other gorgeous sites to see in Costa Rica besides the sun and the museums and one of them is the variety of trees. If you love the outdoors then Costa Rica is the place for you. There are many hikes and treks that you can go on in Costa Rica that will thrill your senses. You will get too see a good portion of the wildlife in Costa Rica as they go about their daily business, which is always fun and exciting. Costa Rica is a great place to visit either on your own or with others.
