Discovering Wedding Speeches And Toasts

By Andy West

The room is full of jubilant people, all looking at you. The lights are dimmed, except for the one directly above your head. As it shines down on you, so do the eyes of everyone in the room. It's time to give a wedding speech and you have no idea what to say. Is the picture painted above far fetched? Not likely, in fact many admit they have major issues speaking in public. For many speaking at a wedding tops the list. The art of giving wedding speeches and toasts is something people aren't born with. Many must learn the craft before speaking publicly. The most common reason for people having issues with wedding speeches and toasts is lack of preparation. Most of us would rather just forget that things such as wedding speeches and toasts happen, and as we get older, they seem to happen often. Therefore it is important to prepare, as you may have to give a toast or speech in the near future, whether it be your wedding, or a friends.

Giving wedding speeches and toasts requires expert training, and thoughtful preparation. No matter how comfortable one is speaking in public, nothing truly, naturally prepares you until you are asked to present one. Preparation means getting materials, brainstorming, and using some friends and family as a sounding board for your ideas. Giving wedding speeches and toasts isn't something that comes easy to everyone, and in fact can be a real issue for some people that are not keen on standing up in front of a group of strangers and sharing personal feelings. Giving A Toast Like Famous People Do

By James Nardel

While wedding toasts are very common, it can be difficult to give a great toast if you've never done it before. Sure, you see the movies where toasts are spoken as if they are poetry, seemingly with no forethought or effort. You might find it difficult to do this, which is why you should give a toast like the famous.

Be prepared! Even mega stars such as George Clooney who just found out he will be hosting Brad and Angelina's wedding come prepared. Sure, he is the typical alpha male that seems relaxed and ready for anything, but do not kid yourself into believing that he will be able to host the wedding and give a toast without some planning! There will be plenty of people at Brad and Angelina's wedding as well as any other upcoming celebrity wedding that will have had some help in writing their toast for the famous couple!

Do Some Research

Search your library or even the Internet for some great quotes on weddings to sort of incorporate into your speech. You don't have to do something overly tacky or sentimental if that is not your personality, but there are some great sentiments that can help you express your thoughts, feelings, and happiness for the new couple. Most famous people have toasts and speeches prepared for them, and when you do some research you are basically using something old or something you've found elsewhere to really help you say what you need to say in an elegant way! Unfortunately, most of us do not have script writers on hand to help us write a toast, so the best thing you can do is look up some great toasts that have been used in history.

Use What You Know

Discovering Wedding Speeches And Toasts

If you know that the couple really likes a certain poet, look at some of the poems by the poet, and see if you can't somehow incorporate a line or a thought of the poet. This is what many famous people do because it shows that they really thought about the couple when planning their toast, instead of just writing something really generic. Using what you know is always the best idea, and if you don't know much, well then you just have to sort of wing it, but using sayings from history or from famous authors or other celebrities is a great idea. It's very hard to find actual celebrity wedding toasts that have been used in the past because these things are usually kept private, but look for sayings on love, marriage, and living a happy, healthy life.

Some Ideas

A couple of ideas are written below to help you start thinking in the right direction. Remember that toasts usually are a bit silly, so get in the right frame of mind, and start planning how you will give your celebrity–esque toast! Below are two commonly used toasts that have undoubtedly been used for celebrities past and present.

Idea #1: Coming together is a beginning; keeping together is progress; working together is success.

Idea #2: Seek a happy marriage with wholeness of heart, but do not expect to reach the Promised

Land without going through some wilderness together.

These ideas should give you some idea of what you are aiming for. Remember that even the most practiced celebrity plans for any and all public appearances and speaking, so plan for yours to make sure that your thoughts come out as well thought out as they should be!
