

Does Your Watch Keep Time with Fashion or Function?

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

Does Your Watch Keep Time with Fashion or Function?

By M J Plaster

Does Your Watch Keep Time with Fashion or Function? by M J Plaster

If you haven't lived under a rock for the past few decades, then you surely know that Rolex stands for luxurious precision timekeeping, and you know that Timex is the premier name in inexpensive, reliable timekeeping. The vast area between the two, however, offers the widest selection of watches—in terms of function, fashion and price.

We're all creatures of habit, and if one watch has served us well for years, it's natural that we gravitate toward the same brand and design each time we purchase a new watch. If you'd like to adorn your wrist with a different type of watch, perhaps a Swiss-quartz or high-fashion watch, we offer you a cheat sheet below, to help you get up to speed quickly with the many offerings available today.

If you've always thought of a watch as a functional necessity, you might add a few fashionable watches to your collection of watches and bracelets. If you've always worn high-fashion watches, consider adding an elegant watch to your collection, perhaps one with a golden mesh band. Whatever your requirements for timekeeping and your sense of fashion, you'll find a watch to suit your needs.

Impress Your Colleagues Watches

In the exclusive $5000–$2,000,000 range, you'll find a variety of luxury watches with names that escape the average man or woman on the street, and you won't find any of these online. Does Vacheron Constantin or Blancpain ring a bell?

Perception is everything, and a genuine Rolex brands you a person of discerning taste. If you live in New York City, you might be surprised to learn that you can buy a Rolex from a bona fide jeweler, most likely in the 10021 zip code. Forget all the hype about Rolex watches: people buy them for one reason. They are the most recognized status symbols in watches—everyone has heard of a Rolex, and a diamond and gold Rolex remains out of most everyone's price range.

Rolex watches are the most popular, and ownership is not a requirement for popularity. It might surprise you to learn that Rolex watches are not THE most accurate. It is unlikely that they take a year to make, and their resale value is of little importance to their buyers. Ah, Madison Avenue strikes again. Still, a Rolex watch is a fine watch and an investment in time. Give me status; give me a Rolex.

Does Your Watch Keep Time with Fashion or Function?

Other fine high-end watches include Cartier and Omega.

Affordable Treats

If you're a mere mortal with a penchant for arriving at your destination in style at the prescribed time (perhaps your job depends upon it), your idea of a good watch probably resides in the $100–500 range, and maybe even toward the lower end of that scale. You know the names Seiko, Swiss Army, Pulsar, and Citizen—just to name a few. The brands available in this price range offer a wide selection of choices ranging from simple and elegant leather bands, to mesh and link bands. You'll find analog and digital displays, timers, calendar displays, water-resistance, etc. in this price range. In fact, this price range offers the widest variety in terms of elegance, precision time keeping, and fashion choices. You can select from a number of watches using Swiss-quartz movements in this price range.

For the Fun of it

You'll find everything from designer-of-the-moment watches to household names such as Swatch and Fossil in the below-$100 range. The Fossil collections feature casual and dress watches in a dizzying array of choices, and provide dependable service as well. Fossil offers a lot of bang for the buck—fashion, dependability, variety.

Starting at $40, Swatch offers the most in up-to-the-minute throwaway watch fashion. The company began late in the 20th century as a consortium of Swiss watchmakers and worldwide graphical designers with one goal: to resurrect the analog watch. Swatch has come a long way since those days, and one of their newer creations, the Skin Diamond watch, can set you back a cool $2000. Of course, you won't run into yourself coming and going if you sport this new status symbol. The rest of us can settle with wearing our moods on our wrists.

And, last but certainly not least—depending on your current age—this category satisfies the Abercrombie-and-Fitch, Top 40 crowd with an assortment of watches from the king of the teen designers, Tommy Hilfiger himself.

Whatever your pleasure in marking time, find it, get it, own it, wear it. Mere mortals like us can browse and purchase the watches of our choice right here—online.

M J Plaster is a successful author who provides information on shopping online for <http://www.watches-4-u.net/>, <http://www.watches-4-u.net/mens-watches.htm>, and <http://www.watches-4-u.net/womens-watches.htm>. M J Plaster has been a commercial freelance writer for almost two decades, most recently specializing in home and garden, the low-carb lifestyle, investing, and anything that defines la dolce vita.

Presenting The Ankle – Front And Center

By Chris Murphy

Jewelry designers specialize in every form of fashion...but usually from the hands up. That is now changing due to society's continued fascination with new, often uncharted areas on our bodies, in our attempt to highlight our best attributes.

As an area located well south of the hands, the Ankle has often been neglected or left out in the cold completely when it comes to fashion. Why has the ankle been an after thought or forgotten all together for so long? Were women hesitant to show off their ankles? Surely not. Did De Beers focus our desires toward diamond rings and necklaces the past few decades? Perhaps. There is no simple answer, but as women obtain more disposable income, they often want additional areas to display fashion. Women now want more than just simple rings and necklaces. In fact, they are searching high and low for unique ankle bracelets; not just for one, but both ankles so they can be fashionable no matter which foot leads the way.

The Ankle's time has really come. It is a great spot for a little fashion, or a lot of fashion - depending on your mood, the occasion, and the time of day. Items such as Beads, Charms, Pendants, Rings and sometimes a little Ribbon go a long way to jazz up the sensual, but often forgotten Ankle.

Designers are now developing "Fashion Forward" ankle jewelry, accessories and ankle wear pieces to satisfy the demand from women. They are addressing the ankle with spectacular lines of Jewelry and Accessories, with many being one-of-a-kind pieces.

Now when you want to garner that extra special "look" while at a party, gathering or function, and really be the talk of the town, put on a spectacular ankle bracelet...or two...and watch the heads turn. The ankle may never be lonely again.

Chris Murphy is a freelance writer dedicated to providing accurate, informative topics for readers. For more information and ideas, please visit

Does Your Watch Keep Time with Fashion or Function?

This Free E-Book has been brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!