Undoubtedly, if you have been online for any length of time, you get plenty of advertisements and offers in your email everyday. Some you delete, some you read. And every now and then you get one that really stands out. Looks like a really good offer! Best offer you've had in a long time. But have you really studied that offer?

I had an email like that sent to me the other day. It started out talking about co-op advertising. Each person only had to put up $50 and they were going to advertise to thousands of people. Then they said, they would GUARANTEE each person at least 5 leads for each advertising slot they purchased. Since advertising is my business, I caught that immediately and wondered how they could be so sure of these ads that they would GUARANTEE leads. HOWEVER, when I stopped to figure it up, each person would be paying them $10 per lead. Well, at $10 per lead, I imagine any advertising business could promise you results. So what sounds like a great offer for a low price turns out to be a not so great offer at a ridiculously high price.

Now, that business didn't break any rules. They didn't promise anything they won't deliver. However, the way they wrote the ad made it very easy to be misled into thinking you are getting a much better deal than you are.

If you are going to make it on the Internet or anywhere else, you need to be very careful. You need to be savvy and stop and think about all offers you get. Things are not always as they seem at first glance. There are many good offers out there, but you need to check into them carefully. Don't let them rush you into anything by saying they will only accept a certain number of people or ads or whatever it is they are selling. Believe me, they'll be happy to take your money a week from now if you offer it!

Who's the guide, the Holy Spirit or us?

Who's the guide, the Holy Spirit or us? by James Sorrell

Many times, in the first Star Wars series, a "gold mine" for George Lucas, Obi-wan (the deceased Alec Guinness) says to Luke "trust your feelings", over & over again. Since we can be easily misled in our soul by satan & company, our feelings and emotions are the LAST thing we should trust, if ever! [Feelings & emotions were designed by God to come at the "END" of something to show us if we did the right thing or not, but NEVER "the caboose at the front of the train", so to speak, where feelings & emotions are our 'guide'.....the "engine", the H.S., of God's leading goes there, as any train-man will tell you. An "instinct" for something is better, but we should trust only the new spirit-nature indwelled by the Holy Spirit and soaked by His word from scripture! [We are not vulnerable to the enemy ONLY in our H.S. indwelled-spirit; our "soul", which IS vulnerable, contains: heart, mind, intelligence, thoughts, feelings, emotions, will, human-spirit {courage, intensity, etc.}, imagination and conscience.] The best defense is 2Corinthians 10:5-b "Hold EVERY thought captive and make it obedient to Christ", like putting an editor in your head, checking out everything before the thought continues to fantasy, or becomes a word or action that you can't take back. It's one of the main operational verses for a real Christian's spiritual growth, and with the practice of a few second's restraint, lets you also obey James 1:19 naturally !
