Divx Movies

Everyone in the Online Movie world is talking about DivX Movies, you may have heard of this term before, but what does it really mean?

Well, If we would ask a techie:

"DivX is a digital video compression format based on the MPEG-4 technology. DivX files can be downloaded over high-speed lines in a relatively short time without sacrificing the quality of the digital video. Often used on the Internet to exchange video files."

But for the rest of the world, what does this mean (in english please)? And even more important, how does this benefit us when we download divx movies?

Here's how it works... You have a 2 hour Movie that you want to download. You have a regular DVD file which is about 4.7 GB, if you wanted to download it that would take as long as 3 days to download!

Fortunately, a Codec was developed by a company called DivXNetworks. What DivX does is that it takes that old DVD dinosaur of a file and it compresses it into something 7 to 10 times smaller, and it maintains the high quality of the visuals and the audio on the DivX Movies.

What this means for us is that instead of a download taking 3 days or 72 hours, this process is reduced around 3 to 6 hours depending on your conection speed.

If you want to Burn the file onto a Cd and watch it on your DVD, first make sure your DVD-player supports DivX/XviD playback, then all you need to do is Burn it onto a CD or two, depending on the size of the movie, and you got yourself a Ready to Rumble movie. Just make sure you keep the copies to yourself and not distribute them illegally or sell them and you're all set.

Another thing you'll want to keep in mind is keeping popcorn in your house and wiring your tv with as much speakers as humanly possible :-).

The Art Of Downloading Movies Fast

By Charles Cruz

Watching movies can be one of the most comfortable experiences in the world. Imagine sitting comfortably in your couch next to someone you really love, both of you just enjoying a really good, Oscar type movie. You know... the ones where you just watched them and somehow you start to think you're the main character of the movie.

Downloading movies can be a great resource to getting movies, specially now that great resources are coming out where you can download movies in a legal way. But before you get on a crusade to download every movie made by Hollywood in the past ten years, there are actually a few things you can do to reduce the time you spend downloading them and increase the speed at which you download them at.

First of all, it's recommended that before you start your download a movie you clear up your computer by closing all of the windows you really aren't using. That's what we recommend until you start getting a good speed and then you can let go and start looking at other monkey stuff while your the movie gets downloaded.

Second of all, we recommend to choose two movies you are keen of watching at the moment and start downloading them both at the same time. This works great because it creates a "race" between the two and we have found that in most cases it actually increases the speed at which a single download would go.

Third of all, be sure to check that you have both

A) Available space in you computer, one of the most irritating things in the world can be to have spent the last two hours waiting for your movie to download when you get the message "not enough disk in space" one minute before it was over. Be sure to have at ideally 2 GB for a single movie, and a minimum of 750.

B) Available time to download. If you're going to start to download a movie, depending on how fast is your connection, your going to need from 30 minutes to several hours to download a movie file. On average, if you are downloading a movie at 32 Kb/s it can take around 6 hours, versus the 12 minutes if you're downloading it at 1.25MB/s.

If you are organized and check everything in advance, downloading movies online will surely be a cool ride for you, make sure you download your movies from a legal source and don't make illegal copies to sell and your all fired up and ready to enjoy the full movie experience.
