Essential Watches - A Guide To Buying Fine Timepieces

By Amy Covington

Sure, a watch tells the time but it also speaks volumes about your personality. Show up for a job interview wearing a stainless steel Rolex Datejust – and you'll see some raised eyebrows. While just having a watch in the first place is a feat for some, for watch aficionados, a good timepiece is a work of art, an heirloom piece. For guys with an eye for quality metal, their collection is second only to what's stored in their garage. The ladies? An elegant watch is part of her jewelry collection.

Sound too extravagant for your budget? Essential Watches doesn't think cost should keep you from owning at least one high-end timepiece. Specializing in discounting only the top Swiss and German fine watches from world-class manufacturers like Rolex, Patek Philippe, Lange and Sohne, Panerai, Chopard, Frank Muller and Audemars Piguet. Even if you can't find the exact watch you want on their website (although highly unlikely), just let them know what you are looking for and they'll get it for you.

Granted, there are a lot of watch peddlers out there but how many of them can you trust? Look for a solid reputation - just check their positive transactions posted on eBay (yes, you really can get everything on eBay). Buying a watch is an investment, so you don't want to rely on a grainy stock photo. Instead, look for detailed photographs of every watch line so that you know exactly what you're getting when that little box arrives in the mail.

So how does a watch dealer get their authentic top-of-the-line watches at below market prices? According to Essential Watches, it's all about their relationships with the "major" players and whom they know. This is the stuff that allows a simple eBay store to grow into one of the leading watch sellers on the Internet.

The Complete Guide To Buying Watches

By Paton Jackson

As a big fan of watches in general and luxury watches in particular, I have decided to write this short guide to help you buy new watches.

I am a fan of discount Seiko watches - I have a Seiko sporture watch, a Seiko body movement watch and a Seiko kinetic relay watch. All purchased in the last six months or so. I know most of you are less compulsive about watches so I have written this five steps guide to normal people:

1. Why do you want a new watch? What are the uses of the watch?

Your answer will determine which kind of watch you should look for. For example, If you are diving, I would suggest you get a Seiko diving watch. If you are a businesswoman, I would suggest you get a ladies Seiko watch and so on. Yet, you must know that watches can do much more than telling the time nowadays. Modern watches may even have a GPS or a MP3 player embedded inside them. Some watches are actually mini computers.

2. How much money are you willing to spend on your new watch?

I would not suggest you to spend thousands of dollars buying a luxury watch (Rolex watches, TAG Heuer etc.). I do not think that luxury watches are a symbol of a person's success. I think one of the discount Seiko watches should fit everyone's budget.

3. Are you looking for an automatic watch or a quartz watch?

The difference, by the way, is that an automatic watch does not have batteries - it is getting charged by the physical movement of the wrist. I personally prefer automatic watches like the Seiko body movement watch and the Seiko kinetic relay watch.

4. Which firm should the watch belong to - Seiko, Swatch, Rolex, Omega or maybe a Replica watch?

You may have noticed that I am a big fan of Seiko. Seiko watches are the most reliable and have the quality of expensive luxury watches.

5. Where should you buy your new watch?

Definitely, buying watches online is much more worthy. The only question is in which online store.

Our experts made a research to find the best online watches store. Find the results on
