Find Out More About Wedding Centerpieces

By Holly Stevens

Having a perfect wedding is a dream of most couples. They want to have their wedding day as the most perfect event of their lives.

No wonder why many people are so engaged into wedding planning because the numerous details of the wedding should never be taken for granted. From the invitations down to the reception, every detail must be meticulously considered.

Take for example the wedding centerpieces. For some events, centerpieces are not that important and may not take much of preparation and consideration. But with weddings, these beautiful embellishments usually found in the reception are extremely important as these items, likewise, set the mood in the area.

Wedding centerpieces are not necessarily the "center of attraction" in the event. But they do complement the bride and the group along with the other details of the wedding.

Normally, wedding centerpieces are not included in the reception or the catering; hence, it is a must that you hire the best provider of wedding centerpieces.

So, for people who wish to obtain some tips on choosing wedding centerpieces, here are some pointers that you could use:

1. In most cases, flowers are the best wedding centerpieces. They add color and life in the reception area.

Best of all, flowers can enliven the spirit of those who are present in the reception. It gives a homey feeling, thus, making the reception program more fascinating.

2. Do not just go with the flowers. Consider the arranger as well. The flower arranger could also be the same arranger you have hired to decorate the church.

The wrong flower arrangement, color, and types of flowers used as centerpieces can do more harm than good. Hence, it is a must that pertinent details like this one should be considered seriously.

3. Shop around

Do not be constrained on one establishment only. It is best to shop around and get more ideas on wedding centerpieces. Flowers are not the only thing that is considered as good wedding centerpieces. You can also have some candles, glass bowls, floating and scented candles, etc.

Wedding Flower Checklist

By Jen Carter

You think you've thought of everything, but it's always better to be safe than sorry. Weddings, although they're meant to be joyous, can often be very stressful. Here's some advice: make checklists. Although it may seem a tad corny, a wedding checklist can provide you with peace of mind. You won't have to wonder if everything's been taken care of. You'll be able to use each checklist as a confirmation.

One of the most important wedding checklists is a wedding flower checklist. Consider your bouquets. Make sure you have the following bouquets: Brides bouquet, bride's toss-away bouquet, bridesmaids bouquets, Maid of Honor's bouquet, and the flower girl's bouquet or floral basket. While this may sound like a lot to consider AND arrange, we've only just begun!

Corsages are required for the bride's mother, the groom's mother, and the grandmothers of both the bride and groom. Well the ladies are taken care of, but what about the men? Do all the gentlemen have a boutonniere? It's tradition for the groom, the groom's best man, the ushers, ring bearer, the fathers (of the bride and groom), and both grandfathers to wear floral boutonniere's to the wedding ceremony. Typically, the colors of these flowers coincide with the corsages worn by the ladies.

Finally, everyone in your immediate family and wedding party should have some sort of floral arrangement. Once you've confirmed that with your checklist, you can begin planning and confirming your floral decorations and centerpieces for the wedding.

Start at the beginning: the rehearsal dinner. You'll most likely want a floral centerpiece for the table. If it's an extended table with many family members, you may want to consider two centerpieces.

Presentation is everything. Next, you'll want to make sure that you have all of the flowers for your wedding reception. Some things to consider are: the head table centerpiece, gift table centerpiece, buffet table centerpiece, and bar centerpiece.

You may also want to place a floral arrangement on the table that informs guests of their seating arrangements. In addition, some floral ideas such as aisle runners and floral headpieces can be considered. Believe it or not, many couples give thank you' floral arrangements to their parents and out-of-town guests. It's become a very modern tradition that has been embraced by many young couples. Most importantly, don't forget to write down the number of centerpieces you will need to make a gorgeous impression.
