ANNOUNCING: NEW MP3 RINGTONE SITE
Free MP3 Ringtone Now at MonsterTones.com

By Wayne Woods

Wayne, Pennsylvania - Advanced Internet, a division of Advanced Telecom Services, announces the introduction of MonsterTones.com—a new web site that specializes in delivering MP3 ringtones, polyphonic ringtones, and wallpapers to cellular phones.

MP3 ringtones, the newest option in the ringtone industry, are usually ordered from a web site and then delivered via a WAP push link to the cell phone. The difference is in the sound that is made by the cell phone when a call is received.

MonsterTones's Bob Bentz explained that with MP3 ringtones, an actual voice or song with lyrics plays on the cell phone. This is an upgrade from polyphonic ringtones that sound like an orchestra playing the song or the older monophonic ringtones that sound like a pianist playing with one finger.

Now, for a limited time, you can test your phone and receive a free MP3 ringtone or polyphonic ringtone by visiting MonsterTones.com. Mike Lieberman, marketing manager of MonsterTones.com, would not reveal the content of the free MP3 ringtone. "It's reminiscent of one of the most famous monsters of all time," hinted Lieberman. "And that's good enough for me."

MonsterTones' MP3 ringtone library currently consists of comedic impressions, sexy voice tone greetings, sound effects, and music. "Record labels are just starting to recognize the importance of the MP3 ringtone industry and are anxious to move into it," said Eric Deininger, product manager for MonsterTones.com. "We suspect many more artists will soon be licensing their music content for ringtone production."

According to Consect, mobile phone ringtone sales will ring up $4 billion in worldwide sales and $300 million in domestic sales in 2004. Advanced Internet has been ringing cell phones in North America since 2001 when it debuted with its Ringingphone.com web site. Advanced Internet is a division of Advanced Telecom Services and has offices in Philadelphia, Vancouver, London, Dublin, and Prague.

How To Download Free Ringtones

By Simon Oliver

Ringtones are very popular these days. People personalize their mobile phones with different ringtones using several file formats, either monotonic, polyphonic and even full-length songs in mp3 or MIDI format.

You can either buy ringtones or get them for free. So where do you find free tones and music? The Internet. There you can find loads and loads of tones to choose from. Different websites have thousands of tones in online libraries, categorized by genre or classification, so you'll not have a hard time finding the ringtone you've always wanted. So - how can you get these free tones and music for your cell phone? There are few simple steps.

First, check your mobile phone to make sure it's compatible with the type of tones that you want. Say, for example, you want to use a ringtone in mp3 format - to use it, your phone should be able to use mp3 tones.

Once you find a tone you like on the Internet, you can ensure your phone is compatible with it by opening your WAP browser and typing the tone's URL. After you've confirmed that it's compatible, save the ringtone on your phone.

So how do you download the tone you want? Once you've found it, you can download it by clicking on the ringtone of your choice. A new window will pop up with a WAP address that you must enter into your phone's WAP browser.

When it comes to searching for your free tone using a web browser, you should specify the song and enter the title or description into a search engine. And if you are unable to find the free polyphonic tone you are searching for on your first try, use more specific terms. You can add the format type like "Britney.mid" for polyphonic ringtone or "greenday.mp3" for a song or "always.3gp" for the video ringtone. Also remember to include the words "free ringtone" to narrow your search.

You can also download ringtones by using a data cable to transfer it to your phone. Data cables can be found at electronics stores or you can visit to find one compatible to your phone. You can also check

<http://elite-wireless.com>

<http://tagshop.com>

, where you can find cables for a wide range of cell phone brands and models.

So that's how you can download and get your free ringtone right away!
