By Celia Namart

A lot of people have already discovered the awesome beauty of Glacier Bay National Park as well as Preserve when it plays a part in Alaska by embarking on an fabulous cruise. There are several cruise lines that bestow packages to Glacier Bay, so you'll forever maintain the ability to find the perfect cruise to match your manageable and preferences.

The reason people are drawn to this far-off part of the world is simply because it holds so much natural beauty . While on a cruise through Glacier Bay, you can expect to see massive, beautiful glaciers, Snow-capped mountains and exotic wildlife such as whales as well as harbor seals.

Since the large part of the square footage of the Glacier Bay National Park is water, the real action lies on the shore. Shores of the bay are full with thousands of species of flowers as well as lush trees. The array of plant life when it plays a part in Glacier Bay makes it the ideal environment for 220 various species of birds.

Proprietors of Glacier Bay cruises recommend you bring your binoculars to get a close-up view of land mammals such as moose, mountain goats, brown as well as black bears, wolverine as well as coyotes.

These amazing life forms can all be seen from the comfort of the ship's deck. If your economical allows, you may even get to see these exciting sights from your own private balcony .

For a basic 5 day, 4 night cruise you can plan to spend between $1600 and $2600 per person. It all depends on what sort of amenities you want. Superior packages invite shipboard accommodations, ocean transportation, on-board entertainment, on-board meals and non-alcoholic beverages. Continually included is transportation to and from the airport. Once financialy planning for a cruise to Glacier Bay, remember to involve money if you wish to partake when it plays a part in a shore excursion. Prices for these vary significantly from association to business, so be sure to ask before you book your cruise. Some other expenses you should take into consideration are alcoholic beverages, personal expenses as well as gratuities. Yet another overhead that's not typically covered when it plays a part in an advertised price is government local tax. These can range from about $5 to $110 per person.

Glacier Bay Cruises

The finest time to formula your Glacier Bay cruise is during the summer months. From May to September, the climate is typically nicer and Glacier Bay National Park services, such as wildlife–sighting rangers, are when it plays a part in full swing. The earlier when it comes to the season you book your cruise, the less it will charge.

While Glacier Bay cruises can seem to be costly, lots of people think the experience they have to be an advantage worth every cent they took out for it. The truly majestic sights will turn into etched your memories for a lifetime. The peaceful, relaxing atmosphere mixed with the new, crisp air of the north will leave you more relaxed and happy than you've felt when it comes to a long time. Indeed, if Glacier Bay isn't on the roof of your vacation destination list, it should be.

Cruising Glacier Bay

By Jenna Grant

You can watch movies about it, you can hear about it, you can read about it, but until you partake of it, you have no clue how thrilling it is to cruise Glacier Bay.

Glacier Bay Mountain ranges with peaks over 10,000 feet, culminating in 15,320 foot high Mount Fairweather within the Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve.

Nowhere else in Alaska, or in the world, can you see the amazing sight of the tidewater glacier that spreads from a peak 3 miles high down to sea level, that is known as the Margerie Glacier.

Only 200 years ago, the beautiful fjords and cruising areas of "Glacier Bay", were buried under ice thousands of feet thick. In 1794, Capitan George Vancouver saw the face of an enormous glacier at Glacier Bay's entrance at Icy Strait.

Naturalist John Muir found in 1879, that the vast ice had withdrawn an impressive 48 miles up the Bay. Amazingly, by 1916, its face had receded 65 miles all the way back to the entrance of Tarr Inlet, where it is today.

So, in only 200 years, these massive glaciers have left us with the beautiful, 65 mile long bay we enjoy now.

The glaciers on the Bay are extremely active and quite frequently, you get to hear or see "calving". It occurs when huge parts of the glacier breaks off and falls crashing into the Bay.

The calving imitates an explosion, reverberating off the walls of the glacier, and the ice makes a giant splash as it smashes into Glacier Bay.

Along with Mother Nature's incredible playful artistry of twinkling icebergs and striking views, you will probably be entertained by the plentiful wildlife that call this section of Alaska their homefront.

Sea otters, sleek sea lions, wolves, moose, black bears, Alaskan brown bears, puffins, humpback whales, minke and orca, harbor seals, porpoises, stunning bald eagles, mountain goats, and an amazing 200 breeds of birds are a delight to watch.

Puffins are one of the most vibrant birds. They are small seabirds, pigeon-sized, that live on the open water throughout the largest part of the year. Except for breeding. They swim and ride the surface of the ocean all year long regardless of harsh weather.

From April to mid August they colonize on islands, and seacoasts to breed. They have black and white feathers and a vertical, flat, triangular shaped bill which is brightly colored especially during breeding season.

Whether in awe of the wildlife or breathing in the awesome-ness of the views, the beauty of Alaska stands out in this impressive Park.
