Government Employees Are Entrepreneurs, Too!

Government Employees Are Entrepreneurs, Too! by Karen L. Hardy, MSBA

There is a myth that presumes that civil servants (government employees) are not motivated.

I beg to differ that opinion. For many, there remains a visualization of the government employee from the 50s and 60s, strudging along with their plastic IDs and pocket retainers.

This description and perception of government employees could not be any further from the truth. Civil servants are an emerging, vibrant and intelligent group of workers who have a heart for service.

Even more refreshing, they have developed a heart for entrepreneurship as well. The pure drive to serve makes them model candidates for homebased business ownership.

Not too long ago, I was approached by a civil servant interested in starting a part-time business. Knowing that I held a Masters degree in business and several years of experience at a Fortune 500 Bank, this employee exemplified a burning desire to not only make a difference, but make money as well. Simply put, this civil servant possessed the same drive and aspirations for entrepreneurship like any other true American.

Surprisingly, a recent survey cited that 40% of Americans have the entrepreneurial spirit, but don't know where to start.

The sheer inquiry into small business ownership by this civil servant made me realize that government employees are entrepreneurs too!

Government Employees Are Entrepreneurs, Too!

And, like many of us, they need a roadmap for making their creative dreams a reality during their spare time.

Let it be known that there is a new breed of business owner in the marketplace. I call them F.E.D.preneurs!

Why One Should Chose A Network Marketing Home Based Business

By Jack Foley

There are many advantages for having one's own business but I believe a network marketing home business has to be the crÃ´me de la crÃ´me. Network marketing above any other online business will continue creating the most online entrepreneurs. Firstly ask any of the successful online entrepreneurs are they happier with the amount of time they spend with their families and the answer will be predominantly yes. That has to be the biggest advantage.

Other business people will spend long hours at work away from their homes, away from their family, friends etc. Traffic, business meetings, travel, are going to be significant factors in any other business. These factors keep you occupied which in turn alienates you from the things you enjoy in life. With a home based business, your time is your own. You make the rules and all work is done online, no commuting, no "dressing for the office" etc. You getting the picture yet?

Another huge advantage is your taxes. Every democratic government is crying out for entrepreneurs like you to go and do their own thing. Unemployment is a huge factor on which governments are judged by year in year out. If you can make it on your own without working for a public or private body, your going to make a lot of politicians happy. Basically now you are off the grid, able to "earn your own crust", not having to work for someone else that the government also lured into the country/state.

So you might ask, what is my government going to do for me in return? Well, by filing your taxes efficiently and by claiming for anything and everything that is related to your own home business, you should in effect pay at most half if not much lower that a regular person who is paying government taxes. This "unwritten rule" really irritates the people who pay government taxes but in my opinion, it is correct. Any individual willing to take a chance deserves to succeed and deserves the perks for doing so.

Finally, the most rewarding advantage of network marketing is that you are helping people achieve their dreams. This in my view is the biggest difference between a conventional company and network marketing. Anyone who has had experience working in a small business will tell you that the goal every month was to sell as much as possible at all costs. Customer relationships came second to the bottom line sales figure every month.

In network marketing, it's all about relationships. They are paramount to the success of your business. You must think in this manner as your downline are much more important to what you make this month. Your downline are your long term business builders. Look after them and they will make you very successful. But isn't it rewarding to know at the end of it that all, the people that made you successful were the very same people that you guided to success. These scenarios are happening every day in network marketing. If you want to become one of these people give your home based business a try, you have nothing to lose only a regret that you didn't start it sooner!
