HOW DO WE PROTECT OUR CHILDREN FROM PREDATORS? by LINDA J ALEXANDER, ESQ

In light of the increasing dangers to our family, especially our children -- WhoisHe.Com and WhoisShe.Com is an online professional service that provides comprehensive background checks and criminal record searches designed to verify if persons are who they purport to be. This online service is the brainchild of Southern California attorney, Linda Alexander. WhoisHe.Com and WhoisShe.Com allows people to do these checks for reasonable rates, in order to protect their families and themselves.

According to Alexander, the conviction and death sentence of David Westerfield, for the kidnap and murder of his seven year old neighbor, Danielle Van Dam, has caused anxious uneasiness to parents who are now seeking ways to protect their loved ones from suspicious persons who live in their own neighborhood with potential access to their family .

Additionally, the abduction of Elizabeth Smart in Utah last summer has also caused much concern, when it was revealed that the handyman who worked in the Smart House was a career criminal. A background and criminal record check would have provided this information to the Smart family and might have alerted them to potential dangers of bringing this man into their home and providing him access to their family.

This concern and effort to protect their family members have caused thousands to swarm to WhoisHe.Com and WhoisShe.Com, to find out more information on persons such as: Nannies, Day Care Providers, In-Home Health Care Workers, and others who provide home services, such as Gardeners, Painters, Contractors, House Cleaners, suspicious neighbors and anyone else who would have access to a person's home and their family.

Alexander says that she has also had requests to check out Sports Coaches and their assistants who are spending a great deal of time with children. Parents are concerned about the safety of their family members. They want to find out if the person who has access or is in charge of their children is a convicted pedophile or has any type of criminal record.

After doing the background and criminal record checks, Alexander has found that many who have sought to work with children or in the home, have convictions such as driving while under the influence, abuse and assault. Further, there have been some persons who were convicted sexual offenders.

Information is the key to assist people in determining whether or not to bring someone into their home or allow them access to their family and especially to their children.

The service also assists in tracing lost loves, friends, finding estranged family members and old army buddies. In addition, there are those seeking to find out about their potential mate, business partners or employees. The cost of the service provided by WhoisHe.Com and WhoisShe.Com range from $39 to $75

Recognizing Signs Of Online Danger

By Asma Latif

Online crimes against children are on the rise. Research has shown that one out of every five children online is susceptible to being approached by an individual attempting to solicit sex. These predators, predominately male, are likely to frequent unmonitored chat rooms, dating websites, and online friends sites like MySpace and HI5 in order to meet their potential victims. He can pose as anyone of any age or sex, often sending fake photos of himself. Once he gains your child's confidence, he may ask for personal information, an exchange of photos or try to set up a face-to-face meeting. Many predators even feel comfortable sending children pornography after a friendship has developed. There are many missing children each year that are a result of meeting their online predators - a parent's worst fear come true!

HOW DO WE PROTECT OUR CHILDREN FROM PREDATORS?

What can you do to protect children from falling victim to online dangers? The best way is to educate both yourself and your child on Internet child safety. Know the danger signs. Does your child hide the screen quickly when you walk in? Do they spend hours and hours online chatting? Have they become moody and withdrawn from the family? There are several ways you can protect your child from online threats. Open the door of communication with your child. Don't be afraid to ask who they are talking to or what they are doing when they spend a large amount of time online. If they seem annoyed by your questions, calmly explain that there are predators out there looking for children to converse with and you are only concerned with their safety. Ask them to show you their favorite sites and take time to see if they are age appropriate. You can also place the computer in a community room, such as a den or living room. If a predator thinks a parent is nearby, he is less likely to communicate with a teen. If someone is continually harassing your child online, you can contact your Internet provider to see what protection they can offer.

If you see an email in which someone has sexually solicited your child or sent them child pornography, contact the FBI or local police immediately.
