Helicopter For Sale

By Bethany Jane Speight

There are many reasons to purchase a helicopter for sale. Helicopters, often more affordable than their cousin, the air plane, afford both fun and function. Helicopters for fun and for business provide advantages over terrestrial vehicles, and can earn their keep in money saved. There are many business uses for helicopters for sale, and just as many leisure activities to pursue with a helicopter.

Helicopters can increase the efficiency of sales for companies with wide geographic sales territories. Helicopters are easier to maintain than a company jet, and much less expensive. Helicopters get from place to place much quicker than a car could, and can carry greater amounts of products. For the fledgling company, a helicopter can add states to their sales territory without increasing the number of individuals providing sales. A helicopter provides a way for a salesperson to see about sales in one state, and still be home in a neighboring state in time for dinner.

This can increase the turnaround of product after sale, and can decrease a company's budget for travel and lodging of salespeople. Helicopters can make taking inventory on the road affordable and feasible, with on-demand merchandising increasing.

A helicopter for sale may spell increased satisfaction for customers who want merchandise on the spot. A helicopter may also increase job satisfaction among traveling employees who understand the necessity of in personal contact but still wish to spend time with their families in the evenings.

Helicopters for sale could spell future business ventures. Shuttle companies that use helicopters to ferry customers to and from cities provide a scenic view as well as a practical function. Helicopters for sale might be the beginning of a ferry business that brings customers to and from nearby cities. Cities located near major airports may benefit from this ferry service, because helicopters for sale and purchased for ferrying increase business traffic in a city.

Helicopters provide an avenue for sight seeing that can bring personal pleasure as well as financial gain. Helicopter rides, ranging from fifty dollars an hour to much more in areas with interesting terrain, provide a better view than traditional airplane rides. This view increases the worth of a helicopter for sale. Customers may pay upwards of two hundred dollars for a helicopter ride over volcanoes.

Helicopter rides that tour the Grand Canyon provide tourists a way to see the majesty of this natural phenomenon - a view they may miss when actually hiking in the canyon.

Helicopters for sale are also very good candidates for search and rescue operations. Helicopters are preferable for search and rescue missions for many reasons. A Helicopter for sale on a search and rescue mission provides searchers a wide view of scenery. A helicopter has distinct flight advantages over airplanes for this purpose. Helicopters can get closer to the ground, and can hover, affording a slower scan of terrain. Helicopters can get into greater areas than airplanes, and should be considered first when outfitting a search and rescue mission.

How to Solve Disputes with the Helicopter Talk Technique

By Peter Murphy

Do you ever find that when a friend asks for your opinion on a problem it is a lot easier for you to see a solution than it is for your friend?

And do you also find that sometimes you feel completely stuck when it comes to your own problems?

The same applies to disputes, relationship issues and disagreements.

When you are part of the problem it can be very difficult to see a solution. What you need at times like this is a helicopter!

Helicopter Talk Technique:

1. Imagine you are in a helicopter flying high above the town you live in. Now travel to where you last had a dispute with a family member, friend or work mate.
2. From the safety and distance of the helicopter above rerun the last conversation when the trouble flared up. Watch the scene unfold and pay attention to how you communicated rather than who was in the right.
3. Ask yourself: how could you have handled the situation better? what could you have done differently? what is the solution to the problem?

Your goal is to be emotionally detached yet concerned with finding the best solution in the same way you help a friend with a problem.

4. Imagine a trusted friend is in the helicopter observing: what advice would your friend give you? what does your friend notice that you missed?

Your own private helicopter can be used to identify patterns of communication you have that land you in hot water as well as new ways of dealing with problems.

Have fun in the sky!
