Hold Your Babys Hands Forever

By Rachel Lynn

Every parent counts the fingers and toes of their new born baby. Those baby hands and feet warm everyone's heart with their innocence and purity that only a new baby can have. As baby grows, parent most miss those tiny hands that belong to their precious baby. Fond memories are linked to that little hand wrapping around a finger and squeezing the love into both the baby and the parent. Sooner than most parents would like, those tiny little hands grow up.

Of course, the baby's tiny feet are also a source of amazement for most adults. Everyone has to see those precious little toes to see for themselves how perfect the bundle of joy is. Playing "this little piggy" with such cute little toes embeds the baby's perfection into the memories of each parent.

You can now save those precious memories forever. Not only do you have the footprints that the hospital made for you, but you can have a real three-dimensional memento of those perfect baby hands and feet. Several companies can help you preserve the memory of baby's perfection.

One option offered makes your baby's hand print or foot print into a plaque. Mounting the plaque on a wooden frame, you can include a decorative nameplate to show the name and age when the prints were made. This is a perfect way to keep a memory of their tiny hands and feet.

Unlike many pictures or personalized baby gifts, these plaques are not usually put away in the attic. Here is a great website related to pregnancy

. Instead, they are proudly displayed hanging on a wall or sitting in a stand in plain view. In this way the family can keep the prints and brag about them to everyone. Family members could even give this as a baby gift to the expecting parents.

The plaques can be made in a variety of configurations. You may choose a small plaque that has only the hands or the feet. However, you can choose a larger plaque that can fit both the hands and feet. Or even better, you can include all of the children's prints in one plaque if you missed out doing this with older siblings. Another sweet memory would be have both the parents' and the baby's hand prints on the same plaque.

Another unique memory option is a three-dimensional representation of your baby's hand or foot. By placing the hand or foot into a jelly that sets in just seconds, the artist has a mold by which to create a cast. The cast will be the identical replication of your baby's hand or foot, and you can have it made in brass, silver, glass, or gold. You don't have to let time steal those precious memories; capture them forever in prints.

Luxury Baby Bedding – What To Look For Before You Buy

By Olinda Rola

When buying luxury baby bedding, perhaps first decide what style and fabric you like best. When you decide what luxury baby bedding you want, mix and match colors and patterns on your babys bed. Different flower fabrics mix well with solid or stripe materials, for example, but keep them all in the same color family.

Be sure and consider which fiber is best for your baby bedding. You should be able to find and choose from the following materials when shopping for bedding:

- Cotton – percale, sateen, flannel or organdy. Cotton is a natural fiber that breathes well, and it tends to be durable, easy to machine wash and to dry.
- Linen – linen, damask or venise. Dry-clean this natural fiber to avoid excessive shrinkage. It is a wonderful fabric to use during the summer as it stays cool in warm weather.
- Silk – brocade, charmeuse, chiffon, organza, doupioni or silk satin. This material gives a very luxurious look and feel to your bedroom. Silk is a natural protein fiber that is very smooth to the touch. When washing your silk bedding, be sure and follow the instructions of the manufacturer's label.
- Wool – flannel, felt, jersey, tweed, merino or gabardine. It is another natural fiber, durable and soft to the touch. This type of bedding is usually very warm, and it should be dry-cleaned unless the manufacturer's label says otherwise.
- Synthetic fiber – acetate, acrylic, nylon, polyester.

Thread count in luxury baby bedding is important. Thread count is defined as the number of horizontal and vertical threads that exist in one square inch of fabric. Thread count in sheets can range from 80 to 700 – most are in the range of 180 to 320. Higher thread count in luxury baby bedding does not mean that the fabric will last longer. What it does mean is that you will enjoy a better quality of fabric that also has a softer feel. Blue and white bedding are classic colors that can be combined with any decor. If you decide to select floral fabrics for bedding, they can go with a traditional or contemporary room decor. Rich and bold colors like blue, red, yellow or perhaps black tend to be used in childrens rooms and teenagers rooms. These are stimulating colors associated with energy, and they will bring drama to any room. Pastels can be mixed with different colors and patterns, and they will give you a relaxing and beautiful room. These colors like pink, blues, light yellow and lilacs are frequently used in luxury baby bedding, nurseries and babys rooms.

Do not be surprised when buying luxury baby bedding that it has a mild crisp feel to it. This crispiness is normal, because manufacturers use starches or stiffening products on the bedding to help it stay wrinkle-free and looking new. When you purchase machine-washable luxury baby bedding or any other type of bedding, be sure you wash it before using it. A great benefit of washing quality luxury baby bedding is that it will become softer and even more comfortable over time.

Make sure to read the bedding labels to be certain the baby bedding materials are flame resistant. And if choosing a baby bedding theme is important, look for nursery bedding collections that come with coordinated accessories. You can save considerably if you can find luxury baby bedding on clearance, even though there will be few or no coordinated accessories. You can use the savings from the baby bedding to create your own baby nursery theme.

Enjoy the process. Later, the child will have their own opinions, but have fun for now! Decorating the babys room can give everyone the chance to add their touch to this special room for this very special person.
