No one has complete control over their thoughts. But with practice, with deliberate attention, far more control can be achieved.

Here are five rules that show you how.

1.Practice thinking to develop mental thrust.

Thinking is work. To develop your thinking process you must put the mind through exercises which lead it down new paths.

2.Add width to your thinking.

Narrow minded people have these characteristics. All negative.

- a.They see only a small part of problems.
- b.They are exceptionally prejudiced. They can hate intensely.
- c.They are intellectually blind. They learn no wisdom as they mature.

To think wide remember :

- a.Be careful of generalising with the "all white and black" approach.
- b.Avoid sentences like, "He's no good", "I hate", "They are stupid".
- c.Think two sides before you make your point. Nothing is all good and nothing is all bad.
- d.Don't be to fast with your opinions.

3.Think like a crew member not like a passenger.

How to build up your own Creative Power.

Assume your responsibility for what happens.

4.Listen and trade minds with people you want to influence.

Remember, it isn't how much you talk. It's how much you listen that determines if your brain will develop understanding and power to convince other people.

5.Develop you own "wisdom builder".

Keep a journal. Get yourself a diary or notebook. Each day write the answer to this question in your diary, "What great lesson did I learn today?".

Remember, when you write, your mental energy is concentrated on thinking. What you write, you will remember more clearly as what you speak.

It isn't so much what you know when you start that matters. It's what you learn and put to use after you open your doors that counts most.

The Power of Linking by Patrick Comtois

The Power of Linking

One of the first techniques and strategies that worked well for me was linking to various websites that allow you to place a link to your website on theirs, or want to exchange a link.

However, don't randomly begin linking to any old site. To maximize the effectiveness of the link, you are going to want the top websites that are ranked high by the search engines.

You can probably see where I am going with this. Use your favorite search engine to type in something like Home Business Opportunities, or Work at Home. These are sights that have similar content to yours and are in the same category. It might take a little time, but visit the top 40 or 50 sites and add your links.

Look for the HTML that says Add a link or Submit a link. When you are done with that, be creative and repeat the process but with a different search term.

If you need some help on coming up with creative search terms, Try this link <http://inventory.overture.com/d/searchinventory/suggestion/> This will give you suggestions on different terms that you can search and submit.

In summary, linking is a powerful tool that you can use to promote your website. It is free marketing for your site, it improves your rating with the major search engines, and it can formulate mutual friendships that benefit all.

I publish a fresh and informative newsletter call "Home Business Tips" dedicated to supporting people like you who are looking to start a homebusiness. It is filled with time saving tools from an honest friend in the business.
