Hyaluronic Acid - Newest Celebrity Beauty Secret?

By Jana Willinger

Hyaluronic Acid - Newest Celebrity Beauty Secret? by Jana Willinger

We can always count on celebrities to serve as guinea pigs for the latest cosmetic and beauty treatments. During the Botox™ craze, even director Martin Scorsese commented that he couldn't find actresses who could frown anymore! Perhaps actors, politicians, musicians and the like all grew tired of looking like Stepford wives because the latest cosmetic craze involves Hyaluronic acid, a key component of human tissue, providing the body with essential moisture and a viable way to erase wrinkles without the loss of facial expression. Hyaluronic acid is available in facial injections reportedly favored by celebrities like Charlie Sheen, Tommy Lee Jones and Oprah Winfrey who have chosen Restylane, a Hyaluronic acid wrinkle-filler that works to lift the lip, wrinkle or fold and create volume. Hyaluronic acid injections do not relax muscles but instead "fill in" areas most affected by wrinkles and fine lines.

There are also several new, non-invasive beauty products that contain Hylauronic acid or work to stimulate the body's own Hyaluronic acid production. Apparently full lips a la Angelina Jolie are a must-have because celebrities of all ages are going gaga for City Lips, a cutting edge product developed by City Lips Cosmetics. The City Lips product stimulates lips to produce their own collagen and Hyaluronic acid, painlessly increasing the size of lips. According to Karen Rauen, Good Housekeeping Institute's chemistry director, "The City Lips lip plumper, we found, plumps people's lips an average of three millimeters." Celebrities like Teri Hatcher, Nicolette Sheridan, Jamie Lynn Discala, Virginia Madsen, Melissa Rivers, Angela Bassett, Lacy Chabert, Lake Bell, Eliza Dushku, Bijou Phillips, Haylie Duff, Kathy Griffin, Tracy Ross, Marlee Matlin, Shannon Elizabeth, Michelle Rodriguez, Faith Evans, Giuliana Depandi, Debbie Matenopoulos and Princess Ann Claire, are reportedly huge fans of City Lip Cosmetics.

There are other Hyaluronic acid boosting "lip plumpers" on the cosmetic market including Lucky Lips which allegedly increases Hyaluronic acid levels by 148% just 48 hours after use. Other celeb Hyaluronic acid beauty favorites include Hydrating Gel Cream from Prada Beauty, a lightweight, sheer cream featuring Hyaluronic acid and Rest–A–Line Face Treatment by Joey New York, an anti–aging cream rich with Hyaluronic acid which helps the skin hold 1000 times its weight in water, causing a natural plumping effect. All in all, between facial injections and non–evasive beauty creams, it seems like there is much hope on the frontier for finding that elusive fountain of youth; for celebrities and for common folk, alike!

E–Hyaluronicacid.com is dedicated to promoting an understanding of Hyaluronic acid, a major ingredient in many medical and anti–aging therapies and to highlighting places where you can safely purchase Hyaluronic acid products. For more information go to <http://www.E–Hyaluronicacid.com>

Injuv Hyaluronic Acid

Injuv Hyaluronic Acid by Ratliff J

Injuv is a revolutionary hyaluronic acid product. Hyaluronic acid is found in the spaces surrounding our cells, with the highest concentrations found in soft connective tissue, such as skin and cartilage. Hyaluronic acid plays an important role in maintaining and regulating the water balance of tissues and facilitating the transport of nutrients and waste. It is a major component of joint tissue and influences the hydration of cartilage, which is necessary for its resilience and elastic strength. The hyaluronic acid molecule in Injuv has been enzymatically cleaved into smaller fragments.
