I Love Owing Dalmatians

By Julee Mitchelsin

I've always been a pet lover. Ever since I was a little girl and my parents brought me home my first hamster I have loved animals more than almost anything else. It didn't take rocket science for me to decide that I wanted to eventually be a veterinarian, so it was no surprise to anyone that I did indeed pursue my dream of working with animals as a profession. I did surprise people, however, when I coupled that dream with a smaller dream of raising and breeding dalmatians.

I think my love for dalmatians began when I saw the infamous movie about them during my childhood. I think I was mostly intrigued with how unique and beautiful they were. So when it came time for me to purchase my first pet, there was little question of what I would choose: a dalmatian. I quickly found, however, that I couldn't stop with just one. I purchased three dalmatians within six months and was absolutely loving my life.

My dream of breeding and training dalmatians in my free time began shortly after I owned these first three dalmatians. They were such beautiful dogs and they were so easy to train and to take care of. I thought about how magical it would be breed this great dog so that many other people could experience the pleasure of owning what I believe is the world's best dog.

If you are looking into getting a dog for your family's pet, then seriously consider getting a dalmatian. Do a little research to learn about the breed and see if it would fit the needs and desires you have for a pet. Talk with owners of dalmatians and see what kind of experience they have had and what kind of advice they would give to other dalmatian owners. And talk with your veterinarian for their perspective on what kinds of dogs and other pets might be wise for you to choose.

Having an animal is one of the greatest joys and privileges in life. I fell in love with owning dalmatians. See if you might not fall in love with owning them too. They are fun to play with and run with, yet they are not so needy that they take up all of your free time. They love to be both indoors and outdoors and they usually house train relatively easily. There are many benefits to having dalmatians the way I see it. But then again, the way I see it might just be a little biased.

Julee Mitchelsin is a veterinarian that trains and breeds dalmatians whenever she can. See

Top 4 Problems Of Owning A Franchise!

By Joe Cooper

The simplest way to understand what a franchise is is to think of the most famous franchise in the world: McDonalds™. Many people from all across the world have dreams of owning and operating a famous franchise like McDonalds™. But is owning a franchise, or traditional store front business, really worth it? Would owning your own business really make you as happy as you think?

What's the deal with owning a store front business? Is it just hype or is it the true key to your financial happiness? Read on for the truth you must know about owning a franchise.

Your first problem is lack of money: Money will definitely be an issue: Did you know you need a minimum net worth of 1 million dollars just to be placed on a list to attend Hamburger University in Chicago, Illinois? One million dollars! This is the University every McDonalds™ business owner must attend to learn how to successfully manage their store. You'll do more research and find out you don't have the $250,000 you usually need to start a traditional business either. You can stop reading right now if you don't have this kind of cash on hand.

Another problem with owing a franchise is that it is actually very risky: Approximately 70 – 80% of traditional store front businesses fail within the first 2 - 5 years. And the percentages are getting worst as the economy suffers. Added to this, the average, "successful" business usually doesn't start consistently turning a profit in as long.

The third problem with owning a franchise or traditional store front business is the long, long, long, long hours you are required to work day in and day out: If you are planning on owning your own business, like a McDonald's™, I hope you are a hard worker: The average business owner works 15 - 18 hours a day managing their business. It's hard work day in and day out. It's too hard for too little gain. If you are going to work 15 - 18 hours a day running your own business, how is that much different than working in a factory everyday? After a few years of this, you'll quietly admit to yourself that you're in over your head, unless you just love to work hard all the time, day after day. Month after month, year after year...

The fourth problem is franchise fees: The franchise fees can be a real pain in the you know what. These fees can really affect your net earnings. When you consider you still have to pay for your regular business operation expenses, it's easy to see you are not making as much money as you originally believed you would.

Conclusion If you think owning a traditional store front business or franchise is the answer to your financial problems, guess again. Use common sense and the guidelines above to avoid falling victim to the disadvantages of owning a franchise!
