Hair dressing industry is a huge growth area all over the world, As with clothes, hair styles change with fashion and with more & more people taking an interest in the way they look, the hair dressing industry will be as popular as ever for a long time to come. Now who says that Indian lacks behind? Indian hairstylist are shining and are ahead when it comes to this art of hair designing. They are creative, Innovative and trendsetters. Today, hairstyling in contrast to the bygone era is more simplified and practical. Hairstyling has come a long way. The crowning glory is seen as a versatile fashion accessory – to be coloured, curled, dressed up or smoothed down.

Here are some of the great Indian Hairstylist who have totally changed the concept of Hair Dressing in Indian fashion industry and represented "INDIA" across the world.

ADHUNA BHABANI: The daughter of a British mother and an Indian father, Adhuna had inspired by this profession when she used to accompany her mom to the beauty Salons. She always has an instinct that hairstyles are as distinct and personalized as life-styles. Four years back Adhuna shifted her focus to India. Adhuna styled the campaigns for Vama, Mafatlal and L'Oreal besides a multitude of others. The budding music video industry took notice of this and work offers from Sanjay Maroo, Anaida, Restless & Boogie-Woogie kept her ticking. Finally the celluloid promising dreams gave her a break and Adhuna continued her good work for Preity Zinta in the film Soldier. Besides all this she had been closely associated with L'Oreal in training hair couturiers across the continent. It was time to juice up her life...Juice Hair, her own business venture started.

JAVED HABIB: He is the person who changed the who view of Hair Dressing industry. he hails from the First-family of hairstyling in India and joined his father's business. Javed was trained from Morris' in London, then came back and dived straight into the family business. These days HABIBS outlets are across the country also have few in other countries and also he is brand ambassador for `Sunsilk Shampoo' and add to his achievement, his name is in the limca book of record by crafting 450 hairs. Javed also conducts various seminars and workshop across the country. According to him, "hairdressing is a romance with the scissor and the comb." Visit him at

Native American Indian Drums

By Craig Chambers

When one visits an Indian reservation pueblo or village, you can very likely hear the beautiful melodic tones of an Indian drum. Tradition plays a strong part in Native Songs and culture. The instrument that produces the most powerful sound is the Indian drum.

The type of Indian drums varies. Each Indian tribe constructs drums to their particular desire. Drums may be created with carved images of people. Or, other Indian tribes may choose animal designs to adorn their Indian drums. Some use jewels and color in northwest Indian drums. Drums are designed by hand and are particular to each drum maker.

Indian drums are very popular today. Many people of a variety of ethnic backgrounds use Indian drums in drumming groups and as rustic home décor. It is no longer difficult to find authentic Indian drum because of the use of the internet. And, in many locations and regions of the country, Indians drummers have businesses, offering their Native hand drums and hand crafts. In the western United States, and southwest, Indian drum are common in stores as well. A large number of Indian tribes inhabit New Mexico and Arizona.

If you do not live close to Indian reservations, locating an authentic drum is not as easy, but can be accomplished easily online. Indian drums are come in many sizes and styles from small hand drums to large ceremonial drums.

When ordering an Indian drums, you can choose between shaman drums which are one sided hand drums like the plains Indians use or Tarahumara Indian hoop drums which are double sided. Most drums may be played with the hand or by using a drum beater or tom tom like . For ceremonies and drum circles pow wow drums are most desired for their deep low tones. Good powwow drums also have a base to hold the drum during use. Unlike frame drums or handdrums, ceremonial pow wow drums are always played with a beater. Some of the nicest Northwest Indian drums and most unique drums are created with cedar for a rich red and blond color.

Northwest Indian Drums in one sided and two sided styles for drumming and decor. This article may be freely distributed with live html link included.
