By I Henman

Infertility is on the rise. The couples who face this problem seek infertility treatments to overcome the issue. When is a couple thought to have pregnancy problems? When they have had unprotected sex for more than a year and yet, there has been no pregnancy. Such couples seek infertility treatments to have pregnancy artificially. With medical science making rapid strides, infertility treatments have developed over the last few years. Steps taken in this respect have yielded positive results for many who want to have kids. However the problem is, a single attempt may not give the results desired and so they have to try on. But this is costly and the bills can go up to the thousands of dollars. The costs for IVF or vitro fertilization and gamete intra-fallopian transfer or GIFT can be as high as $8,000 to 10,000 for each try. Without insurance, this becomes a pain. However just a few states cover infertility treatments under insurance and thus in most cases, couples need to self-finance. Some desperate couples even take out a second mortgage on their homes to have the necessary funds for infertility treatments.

A couple seeking medical advice usually starts off by wanting to know who has the problem and the exact nature of such problem. Such concerns are easily answered by a few simple tests. There can be minor problems such as a hormone imbalance in case of the woman. These problems are easily checked and treated. For the man, the first check is to ensure that the sperm count is adequate. Because if it is not, then not enough sperms are reaching out to the ovary to impregnate the egg cells. In cases where these tests give no negative results, the couple needs to consult the specialist for infertility treatments. While there are complicated methods undertaken, but that is not the case always. Simple hormone treatments and/or surgery can do the trick.

The couples who need further infertility treatments need to do some thought and research work. Remember this is costly business so better be sure. Get to know more on the infertility clinic, the reproductive endocrinologists, the clinic's success rate for the procedures, and the costs involved. Find out whether there are any insurance plans that are offered and accepted. Get details on what exactly is included and what is not in the costs. Infertility treatments start from a cycle usually, but there are exceptions as well. For people who are desperate for kids and have pregnancy problems, infertility treatments are the best option, but mind it, the results are never guaranteed. So in spite of the steep costs, many opt for infertility treatments as a last resort.
