Invest In More Than Business Opportunities by Jeff Mulligan

One of the most important attitudes you can have is the willingness to invest in yourself and your knowledge.

This is quite different from investing in "opportunities" to make money.

Investing in yourself means you are building skills that you can use in your life. Within the context of internet marketing, investing in yourself means spending money and time on materials that get you ducated on this business.

It may be marketing, site design, copy writing, email campaigns, search engines or any other topics. There's no shortage of information. In fact, I often say that information overload is our #1 occupational hazard.

Still, you can't stick your head in the sand and expect to build the skills necessary to succeed in this business.

Certainly, the payoff can be huge. I know dozens of people making six figures in this business. And many others making a nice supplemental part-time income. Working from home. No boss, etc. You know the dream, right?

My point is this: Don't be afraid to invest in yourself. If you feel lacking in a particular area, scout out for reputable resources, books, courses etc that will fill in that gap in your knowledge. Buy the course, read the material and put it into action.

And if it stinks, or it is too advanced or too simplistic – ask for a refund. You have every right to do so. Don't be shy. You deserve quality.

I don't know a single successful netrepreneur that hasn't made some purchases he or she regrets. That's life. But it also seems that the successful ones never stop investing in themselves, through courses, seminars and ebooks.

Why I Don't Invest In The Stock Market!

By John Colanzi

Why I Don't Invest In The Stock Market! by John Colanzi

I'm tired of hearing everyone from the President on down telling me to invest in the stock market.

If you want to help build America, invest in your business. This country was built by small business men and women.

I don't invest in the stock market because it's out of my control. I don't determine how the company is run or where their profits are placed.

On top of all that, the returns are really peanuts compared to what you can earn from a well run business. When the market dropped they said investors shouldn't worry they should have their money back in 5 years.

Guess what?

If I invest in a good program, I usually make back my investment plus within 5 minutes. Can the stock market do that?

I've invested in programs for $10 or $20 and made back 10 times that within 24 hours. I couldn't even cover the brokerage fees for the cost of starting a business online.

Take control of your future. Take responsibility for your success. You are the future.

Learn how to market on the internet and you'll never worry whether the economy is up or down. You're the boss. Your ability will determine your future.

Why are so many people more willing to invest in the markets and not in themselves?

They don't believe in themselves. They think big business will make the money for them.

Invest In More Than Business Opportunities

I'm going to tell you something that I hope you take to heart. I know you can succeed. I know you can outperform the stock market.

I believe in you. Probably more than you believe in your – self.

Don't invest in the stock market. Invest in YOU INC.

In the words of Ben Franklin "Keep Thy Shop and Thy Shop will Keep Thee."

Take off your blinders and realize, you were born to succeed. Invest in you.

Wishing You Success
