This is a testament to the skill and determination of one man, Robert McCarthy, and his life long love of Jaguar cars. Northfield garage retains all the old skills, all the old manners, and all the old traditions that made Jaguar great; due in the main to Robert, but also to his devoted and highly skilled, long–serving staff.

Everywhere there is precision, quality, class and charm; the legacies of an era when only the best would suffice, second best was not tolerated , not good enough. There were no tolerances in the design, no tolerances in the build, no tolerances in the final product.

At Northfield Garage Birmingham, thankfully the same still applies, only the best is good enough, and strangely, the customer , now much forgotten elsewhere, here is always right (most days!).

An ageing sign shows the pedigree of the place, it has been there for years and will be for many more; unusual in the motor trade.
A sign of quality.

Inside, the very latest equipment, and antique employees, serve to give the place professionalism combined with old world charm and manners. There is no substitute for politeness, no need for being offhand. All too often we accept this these days, fortunately , here it is not necessary.

The place has a multitude of ramps, and space, combined with state of the art machinery, complete rebuilds from near disasters have been, and continue to be, performed. I have been amazed at what is actually possible.

There is a paint section, where any bodywork jobs can be undertaken, no matter how large, or how small. Those annoying bumps that elsewhere cost the earth, are treated with expert care, to perfection, reasonably.

The end result: sheer class waiting to be driven away, a car which defies the years, and outshines the rest, with an effortless ease and power now sadly absent.

Choosing Your Wedding Vows

By George Meszaros

Just like anything else in your wedding, your vows can reflect on who you are. You may choose a traditional, a religious, a customized, an interfaith, a multilingual, the possibilities are endless. A "wedding vow" is a set of promises you and your groom make to each other during the wedding ceremony. In Western culture, the wedding vows customarily included the notions of unselfishness such as -love-, faithfulness -forsaking others-, unconditionality -in sickness and in health-, and permanence -until death do us part.

During your vows at the very least you must have an officiant and witnesses present. Traditionally, the groom pronounces his vows first, followed by the bride. The order can be changed; there is no law that sets the order in which the vows said. It is possible for the bride and groom to say the vows in unison to each other. Usually the couple will face each other and join hands for their vows.

Almost all wedding officiants allow you to customize your vows, and it should be discussed prior to the ceremony. If you are unsure about the wordage of your vows, ask your friends, family, and the officiant for some examples they've used in the past.

Sample Vows:

I, (your name), take you, (your name), to be my [opt: lawfully wedded] (husband/wife), my faithful friend, and partner and my love from this day forward. In the presence of God, our family and friends, I offer you my solemn vow to be your faithful partner in sickness and in health, in good times and in bad, and in joy as well as in sorrow. I promise to love you unconditionally, to support you in your goals, to honor and respect you, to laugh with you and cry with you, and to cherish you for as long as we both shall live.

I, (your name), take you, (your name), to be my friend, my lover, the (mother/father) of my children and my (husband/wife). I will be yours in times of plenty and in times of want, in times of sickness and in times of health, in times of joy and in times of sorrow, in times of failure and in times of triumph. I promise to cherish and respect you, to care and protect you, to comfort and encourage you, and stay with you, for all eternity.

Remember that you and your groom can say different vows.
