

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

Keep Your Family Together With A Family Website

By Madison Lockwood

As families grow and fan out across the country, and matriarchs and patriarchs become unable to handle the responsibility of holding everyone together, it becomes more and more important to maintain communication. Life is busy. There are responsibilities of work, school, hobbies, dreams and goals. It's easy to get caught up in your own life and lose touch with cousins, aunts, uncles, second cousins, great aunts, grandparents, et cetera. When you start a website for your extended family, you can keep the lines of communication open and updated with ease.

Upload pictures. Whether they are from a recent family reunion, a birthday party, or a special event like a graduation or christening that many couldn't attend, it's easy to upload pictures via your web host.

One holiday letter ONLY. Instead of printing and mailing a ton of annual holiday letters, just upload one to your family website. Send out holiday postcards instead, if you like the mail tradition and save a ton of money on postage, cards, and envelopes.

Family reunion news and updates. Trying to organize 50+ people who are all over the country in different times zones and varying schedules is no simple task. With a family website, you can easily communicate with everyone at once. To choose a date for your next reunion, upload a calendar and have everyone black out dates that they absolutely cannot attend. To save on supplies, put up a list of the basics that the family will need during the reunion and have everyone sign up to bring something. For example, if your reunion will be spent renting a few cottages at the beach this year, your list might include things like sunscreen, first aid kit, coffee beans, fold up beach chairs, et cetera.

Forums and blogs for updates and discussion. Another benefit of a family website is the use of blogs and forums for the exchange of ideas. For last minute changes or a lively debate on what to get Grandma for her 80th birthday, both of these venues are perfect.

Announcements. Let everyone know what's coming up: wedding, birth information, christenings, baptisms, graduations, birthdays, anniversaries, et cetera. Upload lists of what the newlyweds, new parents, graduates, and birthday boys and girls may need to eliminate duplicate gifts.

Keep Your Family Together With A Family Website

Quick communication. When a loved one is ill and in the hospital or as the birth of the latest addition progresses rapidly, it may be too much for the relatives who are present to keep the whole family updated as the situation turns. With a family website, you can upload updates within minutes of their occurrence instead of making countless phone calls every time there's a change.

Everyday, the world grows smaller but the distance between family members grows larger and larger. It is possible to fly across the country in half a day, but most of our busy schedules and tight budgets don't allow for this indulgence often. With a family website, every day can be a holiday and a family reunion is only a website away.

Madison Lockwood is a customer relations associate for

<http://ApolloHosting.com>

,

<http://www.apollohosting.com>

. As a small business consultant, she helps prospective clients understand how a website may benefit them both personally and professionally. Apollo Hosting provides website hosting, ecommerce hosting, & vps hosting to a wide range of customers.

Strengthening Familial Ties: Have An Annual Family Vacation

By Jeff Usher

Let's face it. One of our greatest fears as parents is the often expected possibility that our kids would forget about us once they embrace independence. They have to move out and establish their own lot in life, eventually. Will they keep in touch? Will they always remember? Will they carry in their hearts the enjoyable memories you once shared? The answer is as clear as the question, if we ponder on in it more deeply. The way they would remember is by giving them a lot of fun memories to nurture. And what better way to make this a reality than by having an annual family vacation as a tradition.

Most importantly, a family vacation would allow you to savor all these things together. That is what a family is all about, after all being together, sharing a bond that neither time nor tide would be able to erode.

And the fact that such a family vacation would be celebrated every year can most possibly define what your family is all about that is, a family which upholds tradition and puts a premium on the ties that bind.

Since you, your spouse and the kids, as well as members of the extended family on occasions, would have a family vacation to plan for each and every year, there will be a lot of opportunities to visit wonderful and unforgettable places. Not only will these experiences spice up your lives, but they would also foster the strengthening of the bond that each family member shares.

Keep Your Family Together With A Family Website

Most counselors, as a matter of fact, promote an annual family vacation to keep the said family together. Each member may have his or her own life to live. He or she may have his or her own obligations to fulfill. But for at least once a year, they would all come together to celebrate what a family really means mutual love and support.

Indeed, an annual family vacation can easily become a tradition that can be cherished by each and every member of the household. Who knows? Perhaps this tradition can even last forever, and there will come a time when you'd be enjoying a family vacation with your grandkids as well.

Now, isn't that an investment worth making?

Jeff Usher is a normal guy trying to make his way in the world. He writes articles on various topics that may be of interest to a wide audience. More vacation saving tips can be found here:–

<http://vacation-savings.morechoice.info>

This Free E-Book has been brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!