Lawyer – Advocating Justice

By Sintilia Miecevole

If you are facing legal problems you can use the services of a lawyer. In cases such as accusation of committing a crime, a lawsuit or facing harassment at your office, you can hire a lawyer. The other situations where you might need lawyers are: buying or selling real estate, establishing a new business, marital problem, taxation issues, arrest, accidents involving injuries or property damage.

It is important to choose a proper lawyer for yourself. It is advisable to call up several lawyers before zeroing on the final one. Fix up a meeting with them so as to get an initial feel about them. It is important to ask questions such as the percentage of cases similar to yours that have been handled by your lawyer. When did he last handle a similar case? Watch out if the lawyer is forthcoming with the references of his past clients. It is important to ask for his fee structure. Ask him about a rough estimate of the costs as well as a time frame to handle the case. There are various arrangements according to which the lawyers can charge. There is the consultation fee that is charged when you meet initially. The other modes are contingency fee, flat fee, hourly rate, referral fee or statutory fee. Find out where the lawyer is licensed to practice. In the initial interview you are also likely to be asked about the information on your case. For this purpose you need to gather all the valid documents and information. You will also have to carry those materials for the meeting.

There are a few things you must keep in mind once you have finally chosen the lawyer. It is important to tell everything pertaining to the case to your lawyer. It might even be foolish or embarrassing but it is worth it. Time is of great essence both for you and your lawyer. You may have to go that extra bit to make yourself available to your lawyer in the discussions pertaining to the case. In case it is you who has filed the suit, keep a check on the costs. Is the lawyer's cost turning out to be more than what you had thought and it is not making a good business sense? Then a feasible option is to opt out of the case.

You can also solve your cases by mediation and negotiation with the help of alternative dispute resolution or ADR programs. You can also go for a self-representation. In case your dispute has a value less than or equal to an amount of $2500, then you can resolve in a small claims court.

Criminal Justice: The Right Career For You?

By Leon Chaddock

If you are considering a career in criminal justice, you may want to consider your options well before making a decision. While this is an exciting and honorable career to take on, it may be more of a challenge than you realize. For those who are considering the true aspects of criminal justice, it makes sense that they should weigh their options completely before making a choice. Criminal justice is a career that is not by any means easy. Nor is it one that is enjoyable. But, it can be more rewarding than any other career out there.

For individuals who are interested in a criminal justice career, it is encouraged that you find the time to visit your local offices. Take tours and talk to individuals. What do they like and dislike. What are the basic tasks performed? Is it all glamorous? How do they justify the risks to themselves? Getting a firsthand experience of criminal justice from individuals who do this type of work for their life's work is essentially the best way to do it.

Then, you will want to consider your schooling options. There are criminal justice opportunities out there that are amazing. The schools that offer these programs are set up to allow for flexible schedules as well as a number of on-the-job lessons that are so true to life that your instincts and reflexes are taken into careful consideration. There are many opportunities out there to consider in these schools.

To find the criminal justice schools that are in your area, use the web to locate them and then to help you find their curriculum requirements as well as their enrollment criteria. Some basic courses in criminal justice can be taken and completed on the web as well. Weigh your options carefully so that you make the very best decision for your situation in criminal justice.
