

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

Making A Wedding Speech

By Kirsten Hawkins

Sooner or later, at some point in your life, you may be called upon to speak at someone's wedding.

Perhaps you'll be the proud father of the bride or someone's best man. Whatever the case may be, it can be a good idea to know how to make the appropriate wedding speech. Some people may think these points are obvious, but they're not the ones that are giving the speech. If you're not much for public speaking, you may find these tips helpful if you ever have to speak at someone's wedding.

Keep it Short:

The worst part of any wedding celebration is when some long winded buffoon drones on and on during his opportunity to make a wedding speech. No one wants to listen to your ramblings for forty minutes, no matter how interesting you may think they are. People are at the wedding to share in the couple's joy and have a good time. No one will be able to do either if you talk for too great a length of time. Try to keep your speech under five minutes long if possible.

Save the jokes for Henny Youngman:

Public speakers often like to try and break the ice with a joke, have you ever noticed that? Have you also noticed that the jokes are usually bad? These people have professional speech writers working for them. You do not. Unless you are truly a funny person (your name is Robin Williams, for example), steer clear of the jokes. If you do have to make jokes during your wedding speech, try to make them appropriate for the occasion. Jokes about weddings in general or the people in attendance will always work better than jokes of the "a guy walks into a bar" variety. Also remember that jokes at the groom's expense are funny while those at the bride's expense are not. That's just the way it is.

Sentimentality Works:

People get all warm, fuzzy, and gushy at weddings. Sharing sentimental stories about the couple and how in love they are, about your own wedding, or any other appropriately smarmy topic will have them eating out of your hand. Make the focus of your wedding speech the subject of love and roses and good feelings and puppies and you can't go wrong.

Making A Wedding Speech

This Day is Not About You:

This is perhaps the most important thing to keep in mind when preparing and making a wedding speech. No matter how popular you are, no one is there to see you. The wedding day is all about the bride and groom. This is their day in the sun, so to speak. Keep your stories and anecdotes focused on the happy couple so that they can stay that way while you are speaking.

Keeping these topics in mind will help you be successful when making a wedding speech. With the right ideas and a minimal amount of preparation, even the most tongue tangled individual can come off like The Great Orator at least for five minutes or so when speaking at a wedding.

Kirsten Hawkins is an event planner from Nashville, TN. Visit

<http://www.wedding411.net/>

for more

event planning tips, strategies, and resources.

Wedding Speech Templates

By James Nardel

As the best man, you are an integral part of the wedding process. It was up to you to throw the perfect bachelor party. On the day of the wedding, you not only made sure the groom was looking sharp, but also made sure he got to his wedding on time with his bride's ring. Now, as you're sitting to the groom's left at the reception, you stand and say, "I would like to propose a toast." Although you've done all your duties perfectly up to this point, the wedding toast determines how you will be remembered by everyone in attendance. The last thing you want is to look into the crowd at hundreds of blank stares as you stumble over your words. Not to worry, by following some simple tips and guidelines, you'll have an instant wedding toast that will impress the bride and groom and leave your audience with tears in their eyes.

The ideal wedding speech should be between two and four minutes. Normally, in addition to the best man's wedding toast, the father of the bride, the groom, and the maid of honor should all be prepared to give a wedding speech. The father of the bride speech is should be given first. It consists of a congratulations to the groom for becoming part of the family, and wishes of good luck to the bride and groom. The groom speaks next, taking time to thank his family and friends for coming to the wedding and bringing gifts. The best man's speech follows the groom's wedding speech. The best man's speech should be a funny speech, which is why its so memorable to the audience. Finally, the maid of honor's speech is the a quick, concise wedding speech that signals its time to get back to dancing at the reception.

If you've read this far and still feel lost or overwhelmed, here are two words for you: don't be. You don't have to be a world renowned writer to write a memorable wedding speech. If you don't know where to start, InstantWeddingToasts.com has the answer for you. They provide over hundred wedding speech templates for immediate download. All you need to do is add your personal information about the bride and groom into the wedding speech template, and before you know it, you have a memorable instant wedding toast. Whether you're giving a father of the bride speech, the groom speech, the best man toast, or the maid of honor speech, there is a template for you.

Making A Wedding Speech

You may be asking yourself, "Why should I use a wedding speech template?" The answer is simple. Weddings are a stressful time, and by using a wedding speech template, you're freeing up time to use on all your other wedding duties. Instant Wedding Toast templates are also the easiest way to guarantee that you'll give a speech that's memorable to everyone in your audience, including the bride and groom. You'll know that on the wedding day, whether you're the father or the groom, the best man or the maid of honor, you can stand up and say "I'd like to propose a toast" with confidence, because you know that you're about to put a tear in every eye in your audience.

Article by James Nardel, expert author at <http://www.easyweddingtoasts.com>

where you can find tons of free toasting tips and wedding speech samples, wedding jokes and famous marriage quotes. Instantly download over 101 complete wedding speech templates plus 200 toasts and free bonus gifts.

This Free E-Book has been brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!