Natural Snoring Treatments

By Burt Cotton

Snoring is big business. Check out the web and you will find hundreds of sites selling products designed to help you stop snoring. Unless you've got a real problem with sleep apnea, however, most loud sleepers can have their volume turned down or off through natural snoring treatments that don't cost anything.

Most natural snoring treatments aren't really treatments at all. They are lifestyle changes. There are many things that can be done to put a halt to the nighttime symphony nobody wants to hear. One of the most common causes behind snoring is being overweight.

Even if you never had a problem with snoring in your life, if you gain enough weight it can become a problem. Obviously, the answer to this kind of snoring is simply to lose weight. And it doesn't even have to be a lot of weight, usually, especially if you have only just become a regular snorer. Very often a weight loss of as little as ten pounds can correct the problem.

For those whose snoring isn't caused by weight gain, very often the culprit is an allergy. Again, this qualifies as one of the cheapest and easiest of the natural snoring treatments. The major problem will be determining what you are allergic to. If you've got a pet in the house, try keeping it outside if possible. If you think the problem is plants, try to eliminate them. But also be sure to wash your sheets and blankets regularly. And clean your heating and air conditioning vents of dust.

Perhaps the cheapest of all the natural snoring treatments is to change your sleep position. Most snoring is done when you sleep on your back. Chances are you'll have to engage in a little help from a sleeping partner to do this one. When your snoring wakes your partner up, get him or her to nudge or roll you onto your side. More than likely that will at least temporarily—until you roll over onto your back again—provide a solution.

Many times snoring is caused by your airways drying out. Although this treatment moves into the area of spending money, for many people who've tried other things it often turns out to be the trick. Invest in a humidifier to keep the air inside your bedroom from getting too dry and to keep your airway passages moist.

Another helpful tip is to stay away from alcohol before bedtime as well as any medications that dry up your air passages. And unless all of these natural snoring treatments fail, you'll probably want to say away from most of the anti-snoring devices to found on the internet. While some people may benefit from them, most people benefit from simply exercising and sleeping on their sides.

A Look At Free Snoring Treatments

By Alan Schill

If you are on a budget, or simply don't want to spend money without knowing if a product will be effective, free snoring treatments may be the answer you have been looking for. Free snoring treatments range from remedies that you can try at home to experimental sleep studies.

One of the best free snoring treatments that you can undergo is simply a change in your sleeping position. Rather than sleeping on your back, which is believed to be a leading cause of snoring, try sleeping on your side instead.

This is not only one of the best free snoring treatments, but also one of the quickest result producers. In fact, it may work on the first night. In addition, try sleeping on two pillows instead of one. The additional height may help to keep your air passages open, which is necessary if you want to eliminate snoring.

Weight loss is among the most healthy and free snoring treatments. Obesity is one of the leading causes of snoring and, as such, has an active role in it's cure.

If you are overweight, or have been diagnosed with obesity, a diet and exercise program will help to prevent snoring and other medical illnesses. Weight loss is one of the healthiest free snoring treatments, which is beneficial in more ways than one.

If you have allergies, consider the possibility that you may be breathing airborne allergens that may be a cause of snoring. Why? Breathing results when airways are restricted, which is very common among allergy sufferers.

One of the best free snoring treatments available is simply the act of ridding your home of cigarette smoke, dust and pet hair. The regular use of air filtration units in every room will help to eliminate many unseen allergens.

If you have attempted home snoring remedies without success, consider a sleep study. This is an experimental study, which is often conducted by medical students and researchers, which is one of the best ways to receive free snoring treatments.
