Puppet Party Refreshment

By Rehan Husain

Good party refreshment is what makes party success. After a long day of stitching and crafting, girls become exhausted and of course hungry by the evening. Let us now find out how to stir up those exhausted girls with great refreshment.

For the next bit of excitement line the girls up in two straight rows facing each other. Draw a chalk line in front of their toes (chalk will vacuum off the rug with no trouble). Give each girl a piece of the cardboard that was used in the last game, but this time to be used as a fan. Toss two ping-pong balls between the two rows of girls. The object of the game is for each team to fan the ball over the opponents' line. The girls must stay behind the lines. The balls can't be touched only fanned. A referee keeps track of the score and announces the winners. The action of these elusive little balls makes this a really exciting game.

Another circle game girls of this age will enjoy is called "Jingle Bell." The girls stand in a circle with their hands behind them. One player is given the bell. A leader is chosen to stand in the center of the circle and close her eyes. She then counts slowly to ten, the counts coming about a second apart. Upon the first count, whoever has the bell rings it vigorously and then takes the clapper in her hand and passes it behind her back to her neighbor either to the right or left. On the count of ten, the movements stop and the leader open her eyes. She guesses who has the bell. Anyone caught with the bell becomes the next leader.

By this time the girls will be ready for refreshments. To carry out the puppet idea serves a puppet meal. Arrange on each plate a complete doll. The head is half a hard-boiled egg with raisin eyes, nose and mouth shredded yellow cheese for hair a peach pickle body with raisin buttons celery arms and a lettuce leaf for a skirt. Under the lettuce leaf will be a generous serving of your favorite hot dish macaroni and cheese, or tuna, or creamed chicken. The girls will be delighted with these tasty attractive puppets. Ice cream is always an acceptable dessert to the young fry.

Each guest will be anxious to take her puppet balloon home to show her family and will rate this party as tops.

Puppet Party Refreshment

No matter how tired the girls are, tasty attractive puppets delighted and excited again in the end of the party.

A Puppet Party

By Rehan Husain

Stitching, designing, knitting is what a little girl likes to do. Their desired can be satisfied by throwing a puppet party. Try this tip for your little creative girls on how to set up a funniest but delightful puppet party.

For something new and different that will rate tops with your grad ester daughter and her pals try a balloon puppet party. The only materials needed for these unusual puppets are a supply of balloons, some tempera paints, a little soap, and some pieces of gay crepe paper and bits of ribbon and string.

When the little ladies arrive tell them they can make their own puppets and a prize will be given for the cleverest, the funniest, the most unusual, and the gayest. Be sure to have plenty of table room for the girls to work on and shears handy to cut the crepe paper. Because rubber is slick, it is best to first rub the balloons with a soapy lather. This soapy covering when dry makes the paint adhere more easily to the rubber. The next step is to paint the faces on the balloons before they are inflated. Either tempera paint or ink can be used.

When the features are completed to the satisfaction of each young artist, the balloon is inflated. The girls will be delighted with the expressions they have created. Tie the balloon as close up as possible leaving the neck of the balloon free.

The girls will want to design hats from the colored crepe paper. These hats can be stuck on with cellulose tape or tied on with ribbons under the chin. A china man's queue can be made of braided black embroidery cotton. When the puppets are completed, each girl can fasten her creation to her finger by slipping the neck of the balloon over her finger and fastening it on with a rubber band. Now all is ready for the "Puppet Parade."

Puppet Party Refreshment

If each girl makes up a bit of the life history or perhaps a spicy romance concerning her puppet, it adds to the fun. She can introduce her puppet to the rest of the guests, giving the puppet's name, telling who he is, and what he's famous for. For instance, a Chinaman puppet might be the best laundryman in town; another wearing a George Washington paper hat might be a statesman; another wearing a cap with a small visor could be a bellhop at the leading hotel. The possibilities for a lot of imaginative fun are limitless.

Convert a handy table into bleachers for the puppet audience while the girls entertain with some stunts, for by now the lassies will be ready for some active games. Divide the girls into two teams for a "Paper Relay." Give the first player of each team two pieces of cardboard about eight by ten inches. The player steps on one piece of cardboard with her left foot and places the other piece as far ahead as she can easily step with her right foot. Standing on her right foot, she picks up the cardboard from under her left foot and advances it ahead of the right foot. The object of the game is to walk across the room and back, stepping on the paper all the way. In other words, the player lays her own stepping stones as she goes. This game is hilariously funny and exciting as a relay. The team finishing first is of course the winner.

Most of the girls like a game which is connected to crafts. So puppet party is one connected to theirs likes. It helps them to fulfill their desire as well as developed a new creativity in them.
