Rhubarb – you either love it or not. There doesn't seem to be any in-between when it comes to this fruit that lends itself from a pale pink to a ruby red hue.

This strange looking plant with its giant leaves and pink stems comes originally to us from China and Tibet. These ancient cultures used the rhubarb for medicinal purposes. Its leaves are very toxic, and they should never be eaten.

Here are a few country–fair recipes for rhubarb – pick your favorite and see if your family can decide if they are rhubarb enthusiasts.

1 cup granulated sugar

2 tbs. all–purpose flour

EASY RHUBARB JAM

RHUBARB/STRAWBERRY PIE

RHUBARB–GIFT FROM THE GARDEN

Gardens Swing as a gift I read a description for an American eagle garden swing. The words simply captured me and made me feel that this was the exact gift that I needed for my wife's upcoming birthday – I went out and bought a brand new swing the next day. Not the American eagle though, but a "Santa Fe Rails" Metal Art Railroad Swing. It is strange what happens when you take a seat in it - it is like your mind wanders off in the second you sit back and relax. An amazing gift for your heart and soul.

Garden Swing and quality time The hours me and my wife has spend together since I bought the garden swing has more than doubled. I am not talking about simply spending time in the same room. No I am talking about quality time with each other where the words and thoughts come in abundance out of nowhere. There is no TV or radio to distract any of us. It is just us. I am amazed how calming and relaxing a garden swing is. It is hypnotic.

Garden Swing and being a teenager again Do I need to mention that our relationship has bloomed? It is like being a teenager again. You know, sitting next to a loved one on the porch and you want to kiss her or him. I am in love again. With my wife that is. I am so glad I came up with the idea to buy a garden swing. The best money I ever spend.

You and a Garden Swing How about you? Do you have one of these garden swings on you porch? Do you recognize my description? If you don't own a swing, try one! Take care and happy hunting for your garden swing.
