SAFETY TIPS -- FINDING AN INTRUDER IN YOUR HOME

If you come home and find your front door is ajar, what should you do?

1) Go in the opposite direction very quickly. 2) Call the police from a store or neighbor's phone. 3) DO NOT GO INSIDE!

Note: The same rule applies if there is any damage to your door which was not there when you left home earlier in the day: DO NOT GO INSIDE!

What should you do if you arrive home and interrupt a burglar?

1 )

Remain as calm as possible. Do not shout or antagonize the intruder in any way. Follow all instructions. When the burglar leaves, discreetly try to see which way he/she goes, and the color, make and license plate of the car, if any. Call police immediately.

3) 4)

If you arrive home and think there is someone inside your house or apartment, should you call a neighbor so that both of you can check your home?

No! Don't add another victim to the crime. Instead, CALL POLICE.

If you awaken at night and think there is an intruder in your home:

1) Stay in bed, be quiet and pretend to be asleep. 2) Call police when the burglar leaves.

If you see a prowler on your property, or if someone is trying to break into your apartment, condo, or home:

1) Make a lot of noise by shouting or screaming.

2) CALL POLICE IMMEDIATELY!

SAFETY TIPS -- FINDING AN INTRUDER IN YOUR HOME

An alarm system for the home is needed to protect your home, your possessions and your family from intruders. According to statistics, more than 2 million burglaries occur each year and more than half of these occur in residential homes. When looking for an alarm system, you should know there are many different kinds of systems available. Many people look to an alarm system to protect their home. It does not matter what size of home you live in, whether it is a large home with three stories or a small one-room apartment. An alarm system provides you with the security and peace of mind you need while on vacation, at work or sleeping at night.

There are many different types of alarm systems. One alarm will work to detect motion from an intruder when the alarm is activated. Another type of alarm system may detect any type of temperature change in a specific room. No matter what type of alarm system you have, it will notify anyone passing by, your neighbors, the police or a monitoring center of the activity. When looking for an alarm system, you should know the different aspects of a home alarm. First, it will contain a power source, this is called a control panel. A keypad is put in place to allow the homeowner to deactivate the system upon arrival or activate the system upon departure. Depending on the type of alarm system you purchase, it may have contacts with doors and windows, motion detectors and glass break sensors.

What is great about an alarm system is that, if it is monitored by a monitoring center, it will have a backup system. This system will allow the system to work for around 24 hours if the phone lines are ever cut by an intruder or if you lose electricity. What is even better is that some home alarm systems offer protection in the event of a fire, can detect the difference between your pets and an intruder and even offer video surveillance.

When it comes to a home alarm system, there are additional fees that are associated with them, not just the initial purchase fees. This is likely to be a monthly fee as well for the monitoring system. From ATD, one of the most popular home alarm system providers, you can enjoy one touch pad, one motion detector, one indoor sounder, two window and door sensors and one button for manually notifying police and fire station of an emergency and a chime feature for an installation fee of $349.00 and a monthly fee for monitoring of $32.99.

Another system with ADT will provide you with one touch pad, one motion detector, one indoor sounder, two deadbolt strike cups, three reset keys, two window and door sensors and one police and fire button for $399.00 installation fee and $32.99 monthly monitoring fee. With ADT and many other providers, you can customize your alarm system to suit your needs and provide you with full 24-hour peace of mind and safety for your home.
