Security Release: Important Tips For Your Vehicle

By Pete Lance

Your car is probably one of the most expensive items you have ever purchased. Therefore you must protect it well to help you keep your car and belongings from being stolen or vandalized.

Here are some important tips for the security of your vehicle:

Tip 1: Park in a Well Lit Area

Places which are well lit and have a lot of traffic are the best place to park your car. No sensible thief will steal a vehicle where there are a lot of people around.

Tip 2: Don't Attract Attention

Attracting attention tells people that you have something valuable in your car. Don't attract attention by placing high valued items in full view. Hide them away or risk losing the whole vehicle!

Tip 3: Take your Belongings with You

Take everything out of your car. Anything that can call attention probably will, and thieves love to hotwire cars that have expensive things inside. Don't leave in plain view any money, electronic items or expensive items.

Tip 4: Thieves Love Audio Equipment as Much as You do

A good snatch-and-grab man can get a stereo out of a car in seconds, often before passers-by even notice. So to make sure that your equipment is safe, you should make it difficult for the thief. Some companies make accessory frames that bolt your head unit securely to the car's body.

Tip 5: Get an Alarm System

Although an alarm system will not get the police rushing to your vehicle or get passer-bys restraining the thief, it will however lessen the time a thief can work your vehicle. Furthermore, many thieves will not even attempt your vehicle if they see that you have a security system installed.

Tip 6: If You can Help it, Don't Customize

Tinted windows, custom wheels, fog lights, all these accessories attract thieves. Your car will of course look like a powerful vehicle, but that means more thieves would want your car as well. If you really want to add performance accessories to your vehicle, don't tell the whole world about it. Install them where no one can see them. Have your car look like something fresh out of the factory.

Tip 7: Lock at All Times

Last but not least, no matter how long (or how short) you are going to be away from your vehicle, lock your vehicle. Make sure there is no way for anybody to get in, be it passenger doors, the boot or even the sun-roof. That short 2 minutes you don't lock your vehicle can be costly.

Your Guide To Car Security

By Ernest R. Peterson

When you take a ride to work or the mall in your vehicle, do you immediately lock the doors after entering? Ah ha, I caught you. I am the only person, other than my wife, that I know who does this. You may think it's an overkill car security measure, but I it will save you your life. When you stroll out of that shopping center and unlock your car door, it's imperative to be alert. And by alert I mean paying attention to all that goes on around you. Keep your head up and survey your surroundings.

How safe are you? Do you lock your doors and windows at night when you go to sleep? How about when you're just lounging in the home? Too many people fail to consider the security aspect of their everyday lives. Sure, it's great to lock down the homestead when you're snoozing, but there's a little more effort involved than that. For example, how do you stay safe in your vehicle? Come on, you probably ride around in it each and every day. The topic of car security is one that's overlooked far too often. And I'm not just referring to your expensive alarm system. We have to make sure our families are safe, even away from the home.

Security Release: Important Tips For Your Vehicle

Ensure that no one is waiting near your car. Then once you enter the vehicle, shut the door and lock them immediately. This is not a car security ad, but a regime that could keep you out of a predator's clutches. Criminals look for those who are less confident and unaware. They're easy targets. Now, another aspect to consider is a car security system. These beauties come in all shapes and sizes now days.

It all depends on what you're in the market for. If you are in the market for a car security system, the Internet is a great place to begin your search. Browse through a variety of websites that offer car security alarms at great prices. Maybe you just want something that goes off if the vehicle is penetrated, or possibly a car security alarm that chirps when someone gets too close to the vehicle.

There are a number of options at your disposal. These days you can even leave your windows down, and an alarm will scream if a thief sticks his hand through the opening. It's all about the motion sensors. You certainly don't have to be rich these days to afford a security system for your car or SUV. It's time to seriously consider your safety.
