

Sequel to Primeval Earth Energy on Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity.

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

Sequel to Primeval Earth Energy on Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity.

By Malcolm James Pugh

Sequel to Primeval Earth Energy on Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity. by Malcolm James

Pugh

Primeval Earth Energy The Sequel

Transmissions.

Say we now throw in a data memory facility to the PEE. Take dowsing, where the PEE is sent to earth by the brain saying Gold or China or Water or whatever is being searched for then having received a mental confirmation tag on that the brain thinks what depth.

Sounds far fetched doesn't it but that is exactly what dowsers do, via the rod or the pendulum. Just try a pendulum 29 inches long over a gold bracelet or ring. Think find gold and it circles the bracelet then think how many inches below the pendulum, and circle that many times and stop.

And it does, doesnt it.

Is this far fetched, after all, you just did it yourself. Anyone can. Surely something is communicating between the brain and the pendulum and the object, why not intelligent memory PEE, which can pass from the body to the earth pre programmed by the brain.

Take this in tandem with sound waves and we see the path clear for hypnotism, as PEE passes over sound waves between brains a step further, telepathy sans sound but still energy transference with data memory, no more odd than wireless computer comms same energy being involved so eventually the message could be contained in the energy itself between computers perhaps.

Deja vu could well be stray PEE being seen twice like a rebound, similar to synchronicity being a pointer PEE left from a previous attempt by someone elses research being triggered by your own need of the self same data object.

Look at telekinesis, poltergeists and ESP in a similar vein . Try thinking on the avenues for this yourself. It fits in .

Sequel to Primeval Earth Energy on Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity.

On a totally different tack, if there is so much surface attrition, for so very very long on the surface of the Earth due to geological or man made disharmony and disaster, and conversely there is so much warmth, shelter and ley line PEE flowing freely and abundantly underground from pole to pole, then surely it makes sense that there must be beings living underground where energy is easily tapped into, there is no need for heating or shelter from the elements and light sources fuelled by PEE could easily support and sustain abundant crops coupled with the unquenchable water supplies. Perhaps extra and differing energy could also be gleaned from tree roots underground, maybe thats why they are called tap roots. In the event of a meteor disaster or nuclear holocaust I would imagine we would be forced underground anyway whether we liked it or not, and there is no reason to suppose this has not happened before.

Next time we will finish our trilogy with a glimpse into pre history and our future. Malc pugh copyright may 27th 2004

Primeval Earth Energy
Pre History and our future.

Down the centuries all previous efforts of man are relegated to being pathetic attempts at civilisation falling short of our own lofty standards. No credence is given to a possibility that the perpetrators were at least as accomplished as us, if not superior. Many of these artefacts and achievements will in any event have been swallowed up by time, eroding and rusting and decomposing and decaying until only the most durable edifices survive in any case. Even the pyramids and the Sphinx were originally covered in an outer coating long since flaked off most of their surfaces. Yet we seem to treat all pre history as being infinitely subordinate to our own science. Take this one example, the Pyramids. There is sufficient evidence to suppose a flow of energy is generated simply by their being there. This may well be tapping into PEE centuries before us, yet we still struggle on on oil, gas and nuclear fuels, all finite and some with distinctly problematic by products.

So who is the more advanced if this were the case.

The proliferation of pyramids all over the globe prompted speculation it was copy cat after the Egyptians, and perhaps before that Atlanteans, who may have been even more advanced, but their satellite states like Egypt may have only retained the technology until it stopped working or no one remained who knew how to keep it going.

In this case is it not probable that the Pyramids, wherever their location, were actually forms of power stations.

I find many previously inexplicable things in antiquity take on a fresh meaning too when viewed in the light of Primeval Earth Energy.

More recently, nothing has caused more speculation than the Philadelphia experiment, well documented by others and needing no help from me.

The intention, apparently, was to make the destroyer, the Eldridge, invisible. The means were disputed, but I believe were four huge Tesla coils, two attached to each side of the hull. Taking my previous examples of magnets being able to deflect or absorb Primeval Earth Energy to create a void, or nothingness in between them , where possibly spacecraft could lift off sans gravity as we deem it, then in this case we have a ship and men in somewhere there should be nothingness when the coils were switched on.

Sequel to Primeval Earth Energy on Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity.

Presumably this is what was intended to promote invisibility. However, a ship and men cannot be a ship and men AND nothingness. Where can it go. It could perhaps shift into a massless state and move in time. Which is virtually what has been described in what happened if you read about it. But the men were still moving so when it all was turned off, mass reasserted itself, with the apparent grisly and grotesque consequences reported physically.

Let us now consider this further. The survivors often went into a FREEZE where they were STUCK in time. Is it not possible this is because their bodies had some PEE from the time of the experiment, and some from where and when they ended up, reputedly Montauk, in another time entirely. If so, surely there would be a contrary pull at times by the different constituent PEE trying to get back to their own Earth time frame, with the men being caught in between so to speak, until one PEE transcended for a time. This would explain some of them walking through walls and disappearing in the middle of a fight, widely attested as true by onlookers. If time is involved matter can not be it would seem, and also PEE seems to carry a time stamp with it.

Consider there are actually other dimensions, widely believed to be feasible by recent theories. If there is a time stamp on PEE I see no reason why there should not be a dimension stamp as well. Perhaps when we die, and PEE presumably cannot reside any more, then we move into another dimension and then continue with different PEE from that dimension.

Assume for a moment that troubled souls so to speak actually retain some of our dimensions PEE upon death, the brain not wanting to relinquish but the body giving out. When transference to another dimension occurred, surely there would be a similar pull to the Eldridges crew in time, only between dimensions. Perhaps troubled spirits as we deem them are two differing kinds of PEE struggling for supremacy. Perhaps exorcism is in fact removing our dimensions PEE to allow transition without conflict to another dimension entirely without any further struggle or torment.

Perhaps mediums can actually sustain this double dimensional facet whilst alive, and see into both dimensions when in trance.

I only put forward vague ideas unsupported by any kind of scientific analysis or proof or detail or postulation of how physically and scientifically all this can be cut down to real tangible evidence. Yet many people spend time searching for proofs and eventually find them notwithstanding that their original inspirational idea was right. They work towards what they instinctively know is right. We seem to have to have everything blueprinted and in black and white before we can believe it is real. The things I have spoken of are real enough, and no one has much idea why they occur until now. I give an alternate view of what might be, and in fact to me is most likely true. It explains a lot of holes in our teachings, and crosses the void between religious teachings, ancient knowledge and science as we know it today. What is there is there, and I think mankind as a whole knows there are currently holes in our true understanding of how things actually fit together and what is going on and has gone on for centuries. I believe we all KNOW or more accurately KNEW what life the universe and everything was instinctively, and possessed far stronger mind skills than now, far better awareness of self and surroundings, which have been submerged and recessed by mountains of apparent fact and apparent scientific advance materially at the expense of subtler forms of energy and skills far more potent and useful. Perhaps free energy is not something too popular with oil and gas and nuclear society. Free does not sound too good to some.

You only have to look at the sales of x files or ufo books or Von Daniken, Atlantis Lemuria, Bermuda triangle to see how deeply rooted in our psyche is the thirst to regain this knowledge and the instinct of all humanity that there is more to life than plain bare facts and more to the sky than stars.

Im growing old on what ive been told
But it doesnt seem quite right
It doesnt explain bereavements pain
Where loved ones go out of sight
It never prepared me for non eternity
When I believed I would never die
Never told why we are meant to be
And what our purpose is and why
Never gave a clue where me and you
Are finally headed from our birth
I just got schools and all the rules
But no map to my inner worth
No hint or sign of anything divine
Or any methods of divination
Mystical man with his esoteric plan
Seemed lodged with hellfire and damnation
Yet I cant be told now that Im old
That all this outweighed intuition
I know deep inside with another eye
Theres more books than their edition
Theres a real world to be unfurled

Real truth out there to find
And theres more than we ever saw
Already deep inside our mind,
Our brains send thought of what ought
To be the true way they should be used
And we just know it is simply so
And its up to us to choose
Whether to applaud the factually flawed
The emotionally uninspiring of today
Or stop and think just at the brink
And try for a more stimulating way
And let our minds think all kinds
And be open and not blinkered
And set aside the lies inside
The truths that have been tinkered
Why constantly cling to words that bring
Disillusionment in their final wake
Why stubbornly grasp theories that mask
And distort truths that they forsake,
I dont need absolute facts creed
I dont need certified and correct
Id rather go with what I KNOW
Rather pursue what I suspect,

For right deep down there is a frown
At all I have been taught and learned
All that has been spoken as literal
All that has on my mind been burned
Underneath their teaching there is reaching
A will to know just who we are
Whether born free for eternity
Or ruled from a distant star,
And I want to know as I grow
Why Im here and where Im going
And currently theres no certainty
And few ways of really knowing,
Surely we can be only ever free
If we know the reasons why
And our minds will open all the blinds
But first of all we have to try.

copyright malcolm james pugh may 26th 2004.

Direct Emails mr_bong@blueyonder.co.uk
Closure has been visited by people

Enjoy

Old systems programmer.

New Scientific Ideas On Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity.

By Malcolm James Pugh

New Scientific Ideas On Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity. by Malcolm James Pugh

What exactly is electricity. What exactly is magnetism. What exactly is gravity. And no one can tell you. We live with these forces daily, utilise them, and yet we do not fully comprehend them for what they are. Perhaps not until now.

Consider gravity as a flow of pure energy and the earth as a huge magnet with a magnetic north and south. If we sprinkle iron filings at school we get a pattern which seems static, and the iron particles seem set in their place. In fact there is a FLOW of pure energy outwards from the poles to each other, branching further outwards and then back. The iron particles would move if they could, which might explain why it is so ridiculously easy to disturb them in a minimal touch of the frame in simple experiments in school. Project this to the earth, or any planet come to that. We get energy coming out of Magnetic south and flying round the atmosphere to magnetic north. Along the way there are many opportunities to earth and this energy wants to get to earth as quickly as possible, ideally as lightning, otherwise it passes through you and I and anything else in its path on its goal, EARTH. This is why we always earth electrical appliances, it has to have a way to earth or it will not flow, as its one mission in life is to get back to earth.

Sequel to Primeval Earth Energy on Magnetism, Electricity and Gravity.

Occasionally it encounters ferric type objects similar to earth which fools it, and it orbits these instead in a closed system it is happy with, a fools earth or to us a magnet.

Thus a magnet acts as a repository or sort of capacitor for Primeval Earth Energy, or PEE as I shall call it for the rest of this article. These repositories can be rubbed on other similar ferric based objects and some PEE transfers, so they both become magnetised or PEE'd. We see from this that gravity, electricity and magnetism are one and the same thing, a Primeval Earth Energy, emanating from the earth, and eventually back to earth.

This intricacies of magnets to electrics and vice versa via power stations is purely utilising this energy before it can earth itself, the magnetic receptors acting capacitor like, earth mimics, to the energy to assuage its headlong flight to earth. In a magnet it thinks it has found earth and then it is liberated by passing a wire in, essentially, so it again flows along the wire and can be used in many forms before actually getting to another magnet or earth, its true destination.

Much as sound is locked away into the silicon of bricks in spooky places then liberated by harmonic stimulation.

This all raises many new, and old, ideas 1) gravity can be counteracted by deflecting or absorbing the PEE flow to earth and creating a hole or funnel to the vacuum of space, eliminating the need for rockets of any magnitude. 2) This flow also runs from pole to pole through the earth itself under our feet, probably via ley lines when not occluded by magnetic ferric anomalies of sufficient size. 3) Massive magnets, huge ferric structures, could pluck energy from literally thin air and store it until a wire is introduced. If this is true then consider ancient wisdoms. The Chinese Chi and Chi of the body, ley lines, feng shui, and it all seems more obvious less occult. We also must have flows of energy passing through us seeking earth, and when we are not actually earthed must act as a magnet.

It must be more comfortable for us to lie along the lines of underground earth forces, than to lie across them, counter to the flow.

Consider dowsing. We have this PEE that desperately wants to get to earth and the purer the conductor the better. I believe our brain acts as a sort of geophysical sonar sensor, that when allied to a dowsing rod, much like an aerial, will pick up sources for PEE to go to. Water is one of the best conductors, as is gold interestingly dowsing very easily identifies these, in fact dowsing with a pendulum at differing lengths will find virtually anything you ask it, knowing the length. Perhaps PEE also has a sense of where it has been, or taps in to a global memory map, but I prefer to think brain sonar stimulated by PEEs need to go home.

Presumably if you created magnetic walls up to open space, you could send a craft out and up against zero gravity or perhaps have a craft with huge capacitance magnets that suck up all the PEE and then having cleared a gravity free path wherever it goes in the atmosphere, uses the stored PEE as power once in the vacuum of outer space. Sort of magnetic power banks a bit like solar panels but working off PEE.

Massive magnets in this format rings bells for me with stone circles like Stonehenge. Could they not be massive power stations tapping into PEE. They could have been interconnected underground by metallic connectors long since rotted away leaving only the stones. Presumably analysis of the soil under the stones could confirm higher than normal concentrations of any metallic residues above chance. We seem to assume ancient civilisations are infinitesimally less advanced than we are, yet if we had nuclear holocaust or a meteor strike we'd have the knowledge but not the machinery or the power. Given that, mining for copper, tin, iron etc and building pyramids and stone circles, both of which could utilise PEE may actually be in advance of our thinking as of now but without the manufacturing capability we possess now.

Similarly, churches and cathedrals and mosques and all religious temples have one thing in common, they tower over all around usually by the tower or spire. So they presumably have more likelihood of more PEE using them to flow to earth, so to be in church would actually increase your bodily flow of PEE and be invigorating. Similarly the warm contentment of community singing and euphoria of crowd or concert singing may be ascribed to PEE being transmitted via sound waves and then evenly distributed on the assembled throng creating a harmony of balanced PEE throughout all and a feeling of one with the world. Sunsets and sunlight on water produce similar euphoria and it may be PEE is flowing into you better at these times, or when in countryside and a feeling of quiet satisfaction occurs, it may be that you are in the vicinity of trees, which attract PEE by virtue of their height as a conductor of PEE and you gain more by being in their vicinity.

Stone circles and churches and the pagan buildings whose sites they were built on sit on ley lines, often at intersections of these, doubly powerful. This to my mind is not chance, a high tower to get PEE more easily from the air, and sited on the most propitious places for PEE to come to earth. In fact WITHOUT incentives like this PEE would logically only flow from pole to pole, so maybe we should think before knocking down churches for having no congregations. In any event surely a church or a stone circle built on an intersection of ley lines must stand more chance of PEE hits or targeting on its relentless flow to earth.

A sure test of this would be to identify a propitious multi intersection of ley lines and build a huge stone magnetic cored material circle linked together underground by copper. I warrant it would produce electricity if tapped off by a wire. A cheap and clean form of energy.

In geology here have been completely baffling and incontrovertibly true reversals of the Earth's polarity down through the ages, reflected indisputably by fossilised magnetised particle orientation set in stone for eons of how the Earth's poles were at that time.

It seems simple enough to me that any time a major planet passed close enough, if its poles were different, ours would step into line with theirs being the lesser power, and would conform with the dominant more powerful flow. When the larger planet leaves we are left with reversed polarity until the opposite occurs with another planet. Failing that there must be a generating mechanism in the Earth as well which occasionally reverses, but I prefer the planet idea as Mars indisputably came very close to earth, and writings deemed rubbish, including I think Jules Verne were virtually proved to be true by Velikovsky in Worlds in Collision, merely prophesying what Mars was really like via actual observation so many many centuries ago because IT CAME SO CLOSE. Presumably a correlation of when it came close against reversals of polarity would be useful.

Plants flourish from directly out of the earth, so probably are sustained by PEE much as we are, and bizarrely talking to them involves sound waves, already purported to be a means of travel to PEE so it may indeed help your plants to grow by talking to them.

Try taking any old wives tale with a scientific bent and PEE makes it seem clearer and infinitely more possible and less absurd.

We look for ever more complicated answers when the answers are there and simple to behold, or as Gurdiev said Man will not fully understand himself until he discovers the true nature of electricity.

This concludes this months little excursion into simple everyday phenomena, next time we will be discussing sub earth power and the Universe, and then finally in our trilogy, the really tricky issue of pre history and sausages.

Originally a Civil Engineer. Mutated to a Systems Programmer. Now old.

This Free E-Book has been brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!