Signs Of A Trustworthy And Reliable Travel Web Site

By Frank Johnson

The web has turned into a valuable resource for travel deals, discount airfare, and travel hints, tips, and tricks. However, some travel web sites are more valuable than others. Some provide you with in-depth travel guides and savings on airfare to destinations worldwide that just can't be beat. However, some fall short and just can't offer the information and savings other travel web sites can. So how do you differentiate between the thousands of travel sites currently on the Internet? The solution is to look for sites that offer comparison shopping, travel guides, and free browsing.

Travel Web Site with Comparison Shopping

A primary feature of a reliable and resourceful travel web site is its ability to provide competing airfare pricing from multiple providers. Not all travel sites provide you with multiple travel rates. Some only provide airfare prices from one or two providers (who, of course, they've partnered with to only offer their airline tickets). These sites aren't trying to help you find the best deals in airfare. They're just hocking their partner's airfare tickets. A travel web site that offers multiple rates is honestly trying to help you find the best deal on airfare to the destination of your choice by presenting you with as many airfare rates as possible. The more options you have, the better your chances are of finding a great deal on airfare.

Travel Web Site with Travel Guides

If you're planning on going overseas to a destination you've never been to before, it's important to find a travel guide that provides you information about the region, the people, the culture, and even the weather. A reputable travel site will have a selection of travel guides to many top destinations across the globe. A travel web site that doesn't offer information about traveling to specific countries isn't much of a travel site. And believe it or not, there are sites out there that claim to be travel sites but don't offer anything more than airfare. If you're looking for a reputable and reliable travel web site, find one that offers free travel guides AND deals on airfare.

Travel Web Site with Free Browsing

Signs Of A Trustworthy And Reliable Travel Web Site

If you're searching the web for deals on airfare, your best solution is to find a travel web site that allows you to browse its airfare deals for free. Not all travel sites allow you to browse for free. Some require you to provide your credit card and personal information before you can even look at their airfare deals. Even though you're not being billed for browsing, it's still a hassle to fill out an online form and hand over your valuable credit card information just to see if you can save a few bucks on a flight. A reliable and trustworthy travel website will allow you to search for cheap airfare for free. Of course, when it comes time to purchase airfare, you will have to submit some information or become a member of the site to take advantage of their airfare deals, but until you're absolutely ready to buy, there should be no need for you to take out your credit card or even provide a site with your email address. If you're looking for a trustworthy and reliable travel web site, find one that allows you to browse for airfare deals for free.

There are literally thousands of websites on the web that claim to be travel sites. And on some levels they are. But if you want to save time and money, find a website that offers comparison shopping, travel guides, and free browsing. A travel web site that offers these three items obviously understands what it takes to travel.

Too Good to Be True??

Too Good to Be True?? by Nicole Seekely

Let's face it, not all people are good. I know what you must be thinking, "What a pessimistic person you are!" However, there are some facts of life we all just have to deal with. There are people out there who want to scam you, spam you, or do whatever they can so that they can make a profit.

I've been in the internet world for many years. I've learned gradually over time how to tell the difference between when something's true and when it's not. Here's a run-down of things to watch for on the 'net when signing up for free stuff.

!?! WEB SITE ADDRESS *!?!

If you're signing up for a freebie that's located on a page with the address of <http://www.geocities.com/~bugger/freestuff/sign-up/candle.html>, chances are you're wasting your time. If they can't even afford to buy their own domain name, how can they afford to produce and ship thousands of freebies?

!! WEB SITE DESIGN !!

This is just my personal opinion (of course, this whole article is) and you many not agree with me. When a page has no design or layout or color, but just some text in a really big font saying "SIGN UP NOW!!", the freebie doesn't look too promising or reliable. It seems to me as though they've slapped a bunch of text on the page in two seconds, and they are trying to get your e-mail address so they can spam you.

!! COMPANY NAME !!

I look for this one a lot. If it's a brand name such as Revlon, Pantene, Sprite, Yoo-Hoo, etc., I usually quickly sign up for the offer. These companies are very reliable and trustworthy, and would almost never try and scam you. If it's a company name you've never heard of, well that doesn't mean they're bad people. It just means you should sign up with caution.

!! LENGTH OF AVAILABILITY !!

As I see it, the longer that freebie is out on the market, the less chance you'll see it in your mailbox. A good, quality freebie is ually in high demand with thousands upon thousands of requests per day. How can a company afford to spend so much money? They only can to a certain extent.

For example, the typical length for a free t-shirt offer to be available is 1-2 weeks. By two weeks, the company has probably gotten over 50,000 requests. Now, if they keep up at this pace, they'll be bankrupt in a month. That's why the offer only lasts a week; so they can afford it. Any longer means the company probably isn't sending anything out. Hence, they're scamming you just to get some information from you.

I'm not stating that everything I've said applies 100% to every freebie or company. There are ALWAYS exceptions. Tons of free offers are out there on the internet. You've just got to have a watchful eye.
