Signs of a Respectable Russian Marriage Agency

by: Annas Agency®

Considering the entire process could cost anything from $8000 USD to $15000 USD it is crucial that a real agency be found and used. Try typing the words "Russian marriage agency" into a search engine and you can easily get 300 000 hits. Sifting through all these agencies can be a real problem. It is even more difficult when you consider that each website claims to be the best in the world and the most effective.

Watching what appears on the internet may not be the best approach since the industry is largely unregulated and anyone can say anything they want. It is a matter of fact that many agencies make unwarranted claims which they can never support or even closely justify.

So, if it so difficult to find a good agency, how should you go about choosing the right agency? Even though we admit it is difficult, here are a few good things to watch out for.

The agency should be registered with the Association of Russian Marriage Agencies (ARMA). ARMA enforces a rigid code of conduct which protects consumers from exploitation. The code of conduct has been reviewed by consumer watchdogs and law enforcement agencies. Agencies not belonging to ARMA may not necessarily be fraudulent, but if they are, you the consumer has not recourse.

The Agency should have a valid physical, email and postal address. Furthermore telephone and fax numbers should be provided. Scammer agencies would never give their contact details for fear of getting caught.

Prices for all services must be given upfront along with the terms via which they may change. Many agencies use free services to lure men into a relationship with women. When the men want to continue the relationship, the agency asks for more money.

Signs of a Respectable Russian Marriage Agency

Both men and women are treated with dignity and respect. A good agency realises that a happy marriage can only take place if both the men and women are treated with equal dignity. Good agencies do not exploit women for commercial gain. If they can exploit women, they will exploit men when the opportunity presents itself.

The Russian Marriage Agency industry is 14 years old. It is dishonest for an agency to say they are being unfairly victimised by the media and government. A well recognised agency would have emerged by now. An acknowledged leader in the industry would have the respect of law enforcement agencies and also work with leading western businesses.

If an agency cares about you it will take the time understand you, the customer via research. They will also have industry research.

A good agency will probably use a credit card processing system. These features require monthly expenditures which fraudulent agencies would not pay for. However remember that with the number of innovations in the industry, it is just possible that their may be an new, yet equally safe alternative.

If marriage is the end goal then trafficking of women cannot be the dual goal. The agency should support the Anti-Trafficking-Movement (ATM). This movement ensures member agencies are not illicitly trafficking women into the sex trade.

If an agency truly cares, it will take the time to advise you through the process. Outstanding agencies will work with you even after you have stopped generating an income for them. They realise that your happiness is paramount. Such are rare but do exist.

Respectable agencies will not degrade Russian women by referring to them as "Mail Order Brides". Furthermore the agency will not create the impression that Russian women are easy to marry.

An agency which convinces women to join their services by promising a life of opulence and money, should be avoided. Agencies which create different expectations for men and women are merely using women as a means to make money.

An agency cannot guarantee a service it cannot deliver. Never trust an agency which "guarantees" success unless they provide written recourse.

Agencies claiming to have thousands of US marriages a year are most probably dishonest. Visiting the USCIS site will easily concur that only about 3 thousand fiancé visa a year are issued to Russian women.

And finally, a respectable agency will act like a professional business by delivering "Superior Customer Service at all times". Do not condone dishonest practices by agencies. As a customer you have the right to change the market and stop fraudulent behaviour.

Dating Women From Russia. Important Tips The Marriage Agencies Never Tell You

By Marina Smiley

I want to share with you information that the Russian marriage agencies don't tell you on their web sites.

Many of the dating agencies tout, how young Russian women are so family oriented and will make wonderful wives and family partners. This causes many foreign men to dream about the perfect family! A family that they have already built up in their own imagination.

Every man who has seen the Russian dating agency ads and believes in them completely, has built up in his mind, and has created his own fantasy, of what a future family with a Russian women, will be.

If the man's dreams are based on a foundation the marriage agency has constructed and no on a healthy dose of common sense, then, most likely the relationship is at great risk of disappointment and inevitable, failure

.The dating services help bring you together, they do not help you to stay together ! It is not their job to make your relationship last, so they don't bother to warn you of the many pitfalls that can become you and destroy your marriage. What do you expect of your new Russian bride and what do you really know about her??

I want to give you an example how you can read into the marriage agency advertising using a critical eye and common sense.

Try this: Go to any marriage dating agency and following their procedure to join. Look at Russian women from 21 to 25 years old.. Pay close attention to what these women have written in their bio s.. Do you see anything in common??? Of course you do..it is very obvious ! Ninety percent if not more of these women have written that they have a bachelor degree. They just finished or going to finish their educational requirements. Ask yourself, WHY?

If all the dating agencies are telling you that all Russian women are very family oriented and in most cases live to serve their husband and children, why would they spend 10 years in school and from 4-7 years at the university, getting a degree ?

Why would these young women spend the biggest part of their young life studying so hard if they are so family oriented ? Why not, instead, go take domestic courses such as cooking and sewing and child rearing?

Do these women, who have spent the better part of their young lives dedicated to getting a higher education, look as women who are preparing themselves to be housewives and mothers and not have a professional career???

Yeap...it is look little bit like the opposite ... if not more...

Here is another question: Compared to the United States, how many children are in the average Russian family?

Is it not unusual to see in the average American family at least three children. The statistical average is 2.7 children per family. How you get a 7/10th of child I don t know, but that is the statistic!

In Russia, to see a family with three children would be quite a shock, absolutely! It is even unusual to see a Russian family with two children.

When I just came to USA, I was surprised how many pregnant women I saw on the streets! In Russia it is very seldom that you will see a pregnant woman in public. For the last few generations, Russian couple produce only one child. By the way, it is a very big problem in Russia.

That each couple produces only one child, does not allow the population to grow but rather, stagnate. To be honest, it is not only a problem for Russia, but for all European countries.

Are you wondering why most Russian couples have only one child if Russian women are so extremely family oriented as the dating agencies promise you? Why don't they want to have more children?

The reason is not because of a difficult economical situation, in fact you can see many countries that have much more difficult economic situations and these poor families have 5–10 children. In Russia, even wealthy families have only one child.

I can give you many more examples of what the dating agencies tell you and what you can see on your own.

Be smart enough to learn about the culture of your future wife's country and about the circumstances that she grew up in, before you marry her. It can prevent you from making many mistakes and help you to build a happy family with an Russian woman.
