Stag Party In Birmingham - Have Fun Before The Wedding

By Tina Gamvros

Bachelor parties in Birmingham - you can't go wrong

I know what you're thinking, but if you've never been, Birmingham is not a rat-infested, polluted pile of rubbish full of concrete buildings no one would want to visit. Cast those preconceived notions out the door for your own good! Do it now if you're trying to come up with a stag party location you and your buddies will never want to leave.

If you think Birmingham isn't a good place to visit, you've got it all wrong. Why the unfair reputation? Sure, the architecture isn't the greatest, but who goes to a stag or bachelor party to take in the local scenery? (Unless "scenery" also includes the local lasses). Birmingham is the perfect place for a stag do - a thriving cosmopolitan centre oozing with the best in pubs, nightlife, clubs, eateries, music, fashion, crazy locals - you name it! Immerse yourself in the local culture and the local beauties and you will soon find out just how wrong you were.

Birmingham is a city - the UK's second largest - that loves to party and have a good time. If you haven't put this place on your to-do list (ahem, no pun intended) write it down right now before it's too late - you've been missing out on the non-stop party scene that comes with every big city.

Colourful and full of new experiences, entertainment, and people at every turn you'll never sink into a stupor of boredom in this vibrant town. Delve into the modern and mainstream or sink your teeth into the alternative scene. Whatever floats your boat, mate. No judgment here. If you want to discuss the "fine" art of lap dancing over a pint of lip-smackingly good beer go ahead. Or if spending an afternoon paintballing with your friends before heading on over to the local pub is more to your liking do what you please. Compliments of Birmingham, of course.

Shops, cafes, parks and monuments are all over the place so from morning till late, late at night your brain, your eyes, your taste buds, your ears, and your nostrils will all receive more stimulation than one person can handle. And there are so many canals Birmingham has got Venice beat!

For a crazy stag party in Birmingham start off in the Arcadia Centre and then move on to some famous Wharfside Street institutions to end off the night in proper fashion. Down some spicy curry at one of the

Do A Sporting Stag Do In Birmingham

By Brett Danielson

If you're planning a stag do in Birmingham, you'd almost have to include some sporting activities. After all, Sport England has awarded Birmingham the title National City of Sport. Situated just west of the center of England, this sporting city offers a wide range of stag do activities for the bachelor party that's looking for something a bit unique and a lot active.

While no one is suggesting that you leave off the traditional naughty doings that have been a part of the pre-wedding festivities since early Greek times, these days the stag do is more often a full-bodied stag weekend with activities planned for day and night. A Birmingham stag do gives your party the chance to take in a day at the races, compete in races of your own, bust a gut laughing at some of the finest comedy in the UK, and then get up in the morning to head out for a full day of off-road karting, paintball tournaments, quad biking or whitewater rafting.

If you're looking for a Birmingham stag do activity that will provide some unusual souvenirs for the lucky stag, how about an afternoon at the Birmingham greyhound track? In addition to giving him (and the rest of your lot) a chance to pad your pockets before a night out with the lovely strippers, you can name a race to commemorate his last hurrah. By making arrangements in advance through a UK tour operator, your stag do can boast its very own greyhound race, complete with private box and bar, race cards printed with the name of your race and a photo of the cup for your race being presented to the winner. That's a Birmingham stag do deal that's tough to beat and impossible to forget.

Your own greyhound race in Birmingham is just one example of a fun stag do activity that a professional tour operator can help you arrange. If you're looking for more unique ideas for stag dos in Birmingham or any other city, contact a tour operator that specialises in unique and unusual stag nights, bachelor parties and stag weekends.
