Teacher Turns Entrepreneur by Diana Barnum

Kristi Sayles, a second grade teacher from Camden, Tennessee, has been writing professionally since 1985 when she sold her first article to GRIT (a family-oriented magazine) for a whopping $35.00. A public school teacher for almost ten years, as well as a counselor for the West Tennessee Writing Project, Sayles combined her love of writing with her love of computing and created writing software templates.

"The software is designed to make writing fun and enjoyable for nearly everyone," said Kristi Sayles. "There is a program for teachers, parents, students, authors, job-seekers, network marketers, kids, and serious business people."

Her collection of Instant Software titles, available individually or as a set, includes Article Creator, Business Plans, Query Letters, Synopsis Creator, Story Creator, Press Release Creator, Essay Creator and Resume Creator. Their features include:

- Easy to follow "fill-in-the-blanks" templates.
- Export capability to save documents to the hard drive instantly.
- Easy editing capability.
- Unlimited document creation.

No experience is needed for any of the templates.

"I easily installed the software and followed the detailed yet easy instructions and created my first article," said Bonnie Joe Davis, author. "This software will work for inexperienced and experienced writers and is particularly good for people who have trouble organizing their thoughts and ideas. Writing and publishing articles is clearly the best and most frugal method of promotion available..."

Beginning, intermediate and advanced writers can all create multiple documents to not only help with their businesses, careers and education requirements, they can use them to increase publicity, promotion, prospects and profits.

"Sending Query Letters in the first instance is appreciated by all – from agents to busy editors and their staff – and noted as a sign of professionalism," said James Masterson, E-Book Division, The StarFields Network. "This program makes it easy to produce a positive Query Letter quickly... It is also easy to personalize..."

The Heart Of An Entrepreneur

The Heart of an Entrepreneur

By: Jimmy L. Hutchinson Jr.

Good morning! The day is more than another day to me. I'm now on my own working for myself, completely relying on my skills and ability to make money. That is what an entrepreneur wakes up to every morning, the reality of being the boss. With this step of faith comes a whole host of responsibilities. But the freedom you get from being the boss is unmeasurable. When I first made the step to carry my own weight as an entrepreneur, I had no idea that 24 years later that my decision would carry me this far. Now, I'm more educated then most having a wealth of knowledge, more experienced with failures and success.

Risk

The heart of an entrepreneur beats on for many years; there is a no quit attitude we have built inside. Even when we just lost everything and the wife is threatening to leave our fire of making it burns ever so brightly. No one can live the life of an entrepreneur without facing so adversity that turns your life upside down. We fall down but we get right back up, stronger and more knowledgeable. The stakes are high, the pain is great and the reward is financial freedom. Think about this country the great USA would not be what it is today, if not for the entrepreneurs like ourselves.

Leading Example

Adam was the first entrepreneur taking on the task of naming all the animals on earth and tending to the Lord's garden. In order for him to accomplish these things he needed to do a few things.

1. Set some goals
2. Have a Plan Action
3. Manage his time to be more productive
4. Get a clear understanding of his mission
5. Recognize the people around him
6. Have a mentor who understood him
7. Get the help he needed to be successful

Those that are entrepreneurs keep up the good work and those of you would want to be an entrepreneur check your heart at the door. Because once you enter the house of entrepreneurship there is no turning back for the true entrepreneur. We live to fight for financial freedom even if it takes years not days.
