Ted Nugent – The Motor City Madman Returns To The Stage

By Jay Nault

If you like pure, unadulterated, in-your-face rock and roll, then you're probably familiar with Ted

Nugent. His style is truly unique, and he makes no apologies for who he is or how he plays his guitar. His true-to-self persona has attracted millions of fans around the world, and Nugent is going to be thrilling packed houses around the United States once again in 2006. Nugent the figure is as much about his life as his music, so below you'll find some details about each.

Nugent's Musical Life

Ted Nugent was born in Detroit, Michigan on December 13, 1948. His father was a strict disciplinarian, and Nugent adopted many of his father's political and personal beliefs. Nugent actually started hunting before he started playing the guitar, but he showed talent with each almost immediately.

He began to learn the guitar at the age of eight, and hasn't put it down since. Nugent's first successful band was named The Amboy Dukes, and he was inspired by such bands as The Rolling Stones and The Yardbirds. The Dukes' first single, Journey to the Center of the Mind, was released in 1968 and was extremely psychedelic in nature, which is in sharp contrast to Nugent's anti-drug beliefs. The band stayed together in one form or another for seven more years, but Nugent eventually grew tired of the comings and goings of the members.

In 1975, Nugent began his solo career. His first release, which was self-titled, was an immediate smash hit within the heavy metal genre, and Nugent continued to produce records yearly. His second album, Free-For-All in 1976, featured a relatively unknown backup singer by the name of Meatloaf on five tracks.

Throughout the 1970's and 1980's, Nugent continued to produce albums that sold in the millions, including Cat Scratch Fever (1977), Double Live Gonzo! (1978) Weekend Warriors (1978) State of Shock (1979) Scream Dream (1980) and many others.

Nugent also spent time as the front man for the super-group Damn Yankees, which produced two albums and also sold millions of records. After these releases, Nugent returned to his solo career, and by this time he had gained a level of fame that allowed his causes and beliefs to be widely known.

Nugent's Personal Life

Nugent has always been known as an ardent conservative and libertarian, and has been an active supporter of several campaigns and causes of that ilk. Nugent is also an avid hunter, and is one of the better-known supporters of hunting rights. He is also a member of the Board of Directors for the National Rifle Association.

Nugent's beliefs have sometimes created backlash, but his ideals have never wavered, and he speaks to them frequently on his morning radio talk show. Nugent also organizes, hosts and promotes an annual hunting camp designed to teach children safe and proper hunting techniques, and wrote an autobiography entitled God, Guns, & Rock n' Roll in 2001.

Nugent has also taken many tours abroad to tour for American troops stationed overseas, and that includes regions of combat. He has won several commendations from such entities as the FBI, DEA and the United States Army for dedication of service.

Overall, Nugent is one of the more interesting characters in all of music. He has sold over 30 million copies of his records worldwide, and his live shows are legendary for their style, substance and volume.

If you have yet to experience Ted Nugent live, you should take advantage of the opportunity that his next tour presents.

"The Truth Must Be Told!" – A Review of "Magic Words That Bring You Riches" by Jerry Webb

I once heard someone define advertising as being "truth well told." By this brilliant definition, Ted Nicholas is an absolute genius because he knows how to dramatize the truth in the most compelling and memorable way. He does this simply by using choice words and phrases.

It's no wonder that sometime ago, Ted brainstormed a single headline for a newspaper advertisement, and it successfully pulled in over $75 million in sales over a period of several years. It's also no wonder that he achieved almost $25 million in direct mail sales of one of his books, and he is often called the 500 Million Dollar Man, having successfully marketed over $500 million worth of products in 49 different industries.

Does Ted Nicholas have the magic touch? No, but what he does have are magic words.

Ted claims that you are only 17 words away from making a fortune. He's convinced that his book, "Magic Words that Bring You Riches," will enable you to earn several hundred thousand dollars a year.

The book's promise was too fantastic to resist. So I finally got a hold of it, and after I read it, I truly wondered why it took me so long to find this amazing book.

The first few short chapters, which fall under the heading, "Magic Words that Get You Everything You Want in Life" may not be monumental -- but they're definitely useful in everyday life. I picked up a few "magic phrases" I didn't know, such as how to get the very best table in any restaurant; attract the opposite sex; have clients or employers clamoring to hire you; fly first class for the price of coach; or rent a Mercedes for the price of a Ford.

After reading the last 23 chapters, however, I was positively speechless. Ted shares his earth-shaking secrets for accomplishing marketing miracles. Recognizing that different words produce different results, Ted invested over $100,000 in tests to discover magic words that produce the best results in marketing. He dispenses these magic words freely throughout this book. This is simply pure gold for anyone who wants to succeed in marketing, particularly direct response marketing.

"Ted's strategies earned me over $1,000,000 last year!"

--- Mike Enlow, Masters of Marketing, Magnolia, Mississippi

Although I'd like to explain the phenomenon behind these magic words, I'd rather you hear it straight from the horse's mouth – so I'm going to let Ted explain how he discovered these powerful words and phrases – and how you can use them to market successfully.
