The Dukes Of Hazzard (Season 4) DVD Review

By Britt Gillette

For much of the early 1980s, the CBS prime time line-up was dominated by two shows: Dallas and

The Dukes Of Hazzard. Following the adventures of the fictional Duke family of Hazzard County, Georgia, the series chronicled their endless struggles with local law enforcement officer Rosco P. Coltrane and his domineering supervisor, J.D. "Boss" Hogg. Cousins Bo, Luke, and Daisy lived on the family farm with their Uncle Jesse, and friendly mechanic "Cooter" often aided them in foiling Boss's plans, but the true star of the series was an orange race car known as the General Lee...

The Dukes Of Hazzard (Season 4) DVD features a number of exciting episodes including the season premiere "Mrs. Daisy Hogg" in which Jamie Lee Hogg, Boss's polite and "un-Hogg-like" nephew moves to Hazzard County to open an old mill. Daisy and Jamie Lee fall in love and announce their engagement, much to the chagrin of the Duke and Hogg families. But Daisy doesn't know that Jamie Lee is running a counterfeiting ring out of the mill... Other notable episodes include "Sadie Hogg Day" in which Boss, about to get a visit from the state auditor, rigs a drawing so that Daisy becomes County Treasurer for the day - making her legally responsible for the county funds, and "Dear Diary" in which Roscoe's diary, detailing his various crimes with Boss, is left at the Duke farm by mistake. When Jesse tries to return the diary, two crooks steal it and use it to blackmail Boss and Roscoe...

The Dukes Of Hazzard (Season 2) DVD Review

By Britt Gillette

One of the highest rated prime time television shows of the late 70s and early 80s was The Dukes Of Hazzard. The family friendly action series took a comic book approach to telling its tale of a family of farmers with a fast race car named the Dukes. The Dukes - comprised of Uncle Jesse, Cousin Bo, Cousin Luke, and Cousin Daisy - are reformed bootleggers who constantly butt heads with local sheriff Rosco P. Coltrane and county commissioner J.D. Hogg. With the aid of local mechanic Cooter and the bright orange General Lee race car, the Dukes are always one step ahead of the bad guys...

The Dukes of Hazzard (Season 2) DVD provides a number of famous episodes, including guest appearances by Cale Yarborough and The Oak Ridge Boys. Deputy Sheriff Cletus (Rick Hurst) also makes his first appearance in the show's second season. Boss Hogg nephew Hughie Hogg (Jeff Altman) also makes his first appearance. With Waylon Jennings's weekly narrations as "The Balladeer" (performing artist of the show's legendary, chart-topping theme song), The Dukes of Hazzard provides hours of family-friendly programming as Boss and Roscoe match wits with the Duke clan...
