The Great Pyramid – Part Two

By Robert Bruce Baird

The Great Pyramid – Part Two by Robert Bruce Baird

The location of the Great Pyramid at the centre of the Earth's land masses, unless it is truly a coincidence, implies the following. First, its builders knew the geography and size of the Earth quite accurately because they could not otherwise calculate the correct centre of land – masses. Second, they chose Egypt because the centre is there {It would be quite coincidental that they were Egyptian as well.}, and this means that Ancient Egyptian civilization may have arisen because of lingering cultural influences as well as because of the supposed advantages conferred by the Nile. Third, the three pyramids of the Giza complex, including the Sphinx, were built by someone other than the Ancient Egyptians—unless we are willing to grant them advanced knowledge as well—but then we must contend with the various correlations at Giza that all point to 10,500 B.C. as the origin of the Giza complex {I'll grant this date or 2,000 years later for the Sphinx, as well as the whole complex being designed at this time. I believe the capstones were used before the final Pyramids were constructed. It would appear there were other pyramids built to imitate this 'GREAT' pyramid. The issue of the Brazilian pyramids is yet to be determined, and it is possible they are even more 'fantastic'}. Either the three pyramids and the Sphinx were built by an unknown culture long before the beginnings of Ancient Egypt, now dated as about 3200 B.C., or the Egyptians themselves have a much longer history than we think." Some hermetic sages who are heroes of mine are mentioned in the following response to a person asking me about Shakespeare's tragedies. The publisher site mentioned in this was in reference to Diverse Druids which set the stage for my re-evaluation of all history and man's cultural evolution or devolution. The graphics from that book and site are included herein.

Shakespeare's Cosmogony of the Spheres and the Tao combine with the chakras to give the Tree of Life or Norse and Indian of America - this Tree of Yggdrasil is shown in the graphics at my publisher site.

The Triune Nature of Man is the Tao plus Divine Spirit and together can become Providential especially when a true union (Yoga means union) is achieved. Thus as Victor Hugo noted in his evaluation of Shakespeare "One is drawn back again and again to the cliff over-looking the waves of the marvellous, and each time taking one step further down or towards the precipice". But when you lose yourself fully in the 'marvelous' you will find PURPOSE and that Divine Providence you are part and parcel of. We are all Gods in Training and God requires all energy to harmonize and thus another phrase for Shakespeare's Cosmogony (a paper I did a real study of in grade 11) is 'Harmony of the Spheres' (spheres is sephirah).

How much of the intrigue surrounding the abuse of religion was known to Pelikan, the eminent scholar of Yale University, is a matter of conjecture. He certainly would have known about Prescott Bush and the other Skull and Bones people named in court proceedings for trading with the enemy. He most certainly would have known about the Rockefeller involvement in the family of Jesus or Merovingian group that includes the Rothschilds and Kennedy family. And he should have known a lot more about the man (Rothschild illegitimate that Hitler's father was) who called himself 'the torch-bearer for Jesus'. I have delved into the matter of esoteric teachings in the St. Germain established center of Vienna where Hitler and his father studied for much of their life. I am sure there is a great deal I will never know about the von Neumann he spent time with there. You must ask yourself why Old Joe Kennedy and the Brown Bros./Harriman/Bush and the later Bilderbergs of Prince Bernhard or the Beacon Hill Mob of Rockefeller/Rothschilds were supporting Hitler and Stalin both.

The Sun god, Mithras, was the most widely worshipped deity in the Roman Empire in the first century when Christianity was first forming. Mithras was called the Son of God, the light of the world, he was a redeemer and savior and his birthday was celebrated on December twenty-fifth. He eventually died and was buried in a cave and was resurrected three days later. Sound familiar? Constantine is said to have converted to Christianity but that is pure 'Spin' from the editor of the Bible. He was a Mithras worshipper and they are Heliopolitans or Luciferians just like Hitler and his 'torch-bearer' crap. IESA is in Iesoos of the fish symbol and IXOYE as well as many other pre-Christian things they appropriated; which the Father of Biblical Archaeology says shows the Bible is a 'Phoenician literary legacy'. It is not the first time you have heard about it.

Iesa also can be shown in Zeus and Hijaz or even Giza or Gizeh when you understand the aspirant 'H' which still allows people to pronounce Jesus as Hey-soos or Julio as Who-lío. The lack of 'J' in most pre-Christian alphabets is important and we can learn a lot about words when we take out the vowels and look for doubling or reversing consonants. I think doubling shows a removal from the original so we see Bible and Babel and Byblos are all from BL or Bel and Ba'al whose city or 'bek' is very ancient indeed.

So a Jew includes all those noble arch-tectons (see Septuagint) who built the Pyramid – that means all elites. And elites have been known to use their FLOCK as sword or cannon fodder. Hitler learned about this ancient culture of Wotan, Iesa, the Vaner and the Gaedhils who are the builders of the Pyramid in pre-Hyksos time.

"Conor Newman, an archaeology lecturer at the National University of Ireland at Galway, located the subterranean temple of Tara. Since 1992, Newman has been working on the Hill of Tara preparing a survey of the area for the state-funded Discovery Program. He found the Tara monument using an underground radar device. 'It fills a very important place in the jigsaw because it allows us to make sense of the distribution of other monuments all around it,' says Newman.¹

The Discovery Program, set up under the auspices of the Heritage Council, carried out a survey of the Hill of Tara between 1992 and 1996 when Mr. Newman was director.

When Mr. Newman moved to Galway he continued to be involved in the project. Using sophisticated technology, he and his team of experts mapped what was underground. Like Theseus, they seek the secrets of the labyrinth—dwelling Mino—Taur, the King of Tara. The work is slow and tedious, because it has yielded such a huge amount of information.

What they uncovered eventually at the crown of the hill was a huge, oval—shaped monument measuring about 170 meters at its widest point. Around it are 300 postholes measuring two meters wide. Evidence indicates this 'Crown' (tiara) of Tara was constructed through an enormous effort. 300 towering oak posts once surrounded the hill.

'We think it probably dates from 2500 to 2300 BC and still had a big physical presence even after the posts were taken out or rotted,' Mr. Newman said.²

This is the approximate time of Abraham, the "son of Terah" who became the patriarch of Judaism, Christianity and Islam (the three religions at the root of the holy War on Terror).

His "Oaks of Mamre" were well known and long revered.³ Credible evidence of them has never been discovered in the Holy Land. However, in Ireland clear evidence is found at Tara.

Legend says Abraham's oaks existed from the beginning of the world, and used to be green and bear leaves until his descendent Jesus died, when it and all sacred oaks were cut down.

Jesus (called Pan—Tara, 'god of Tara') is known in ancient Irish history as Iessa, a name derived from I.A. or E.A. (pronounced Eye—a), the Sumerian creator god who was portrayed wearing a fish suit. Lord Melchizedek, the Pope—king of Jerusalem (Ire—u—salem) and forerunner of Christ who initiated Abraham and his wife, Sarah,⁴ is equated with E.A. The Irish called him the sun god Fin (an Irish name for the Sun), a pun on fish. The Irish are called the Children of the Sun, because in Egypt Ra, the Ray or the Ra—Eye is the Sun. Ra's symbol is an eye. Hence, the term Iris or Irish.

Fin (E.A.) presided over the Tara assembly, as a Druid in strangely flowered garments, and with a double—pointed head—dress and bearing in his hand a book. His two—headed miter of fishy form, his upright rod, spotted or checkered garment and basket in hand, are symbols that align him with E.A. His column (i, eye) or pillar of Tara is remembered as the Tree of Life of numerous traditions." (2)

Are they intent on keeping us in the dark and treating us like mushrooms for some ulterior reason? Mushrooms thrive on manure but humans perform better when provided firsthand information rather than manipulative, trite and false statistics that compare us against others. We must authenticate authority and it must demonstrate a creative and loving purpose before we entitle it to lead us into the vast horizons of creative universe which aren't (and never were) limited by some Malthusian economic model. They also aren't limited by the potential to destroy us, when you consider biotechnology, nanotechnology, mind—control, robots with human and other biological components as well as the usual greed and power needs of insecure deviates.

If It Quacks Like A Pyramid...

By Kim Klaver

Who gets the Pyramid Quack award?

On our conference call the other day, people wondered how to talk and act so that people would stop asking "Is this a pyramid/one of those things?"

One way is to stop, forever, saying and doing the things that evoke this image in the minds of others – i.e. people "who abuse their friends and try to sell them stuff, and get them to sell and take a percent."

For years, it's been all about getting people to sell and recruit. That's the reason countless people discouraged (and ridiculed) my customer-oriented students, "There's no money in customers. All the money's in the recruiting."

I've taught hundreds of classes to those who prefer to amass customers. It's lucrative in some companies, and many stayed in the business because they learned how to do that, instead of quitting.

But some companies pay you to act like you're a pyramid type. We will bestow upon them the "Pyramid Quack" award. Yes, here. To encourage them to change their pyramid quacking ways which make their people look bad.

If it quacks like a pyramid...

"a pyramid scheme is...[where] the need to subscribe newcomers outweighs whatever benefits the products or system has to offer. Many MLMs sell distributorships more than cosmetics [name your product or service – KK]." –Coercion: Why We Listen to What "they" Say

Some people don't know it from the way the business is promoted, but we do two things to make money in the network marketing business:

1) get customers (earn a percent on their orders) 2) Get sales reps who want to get customers and more sales reps (earn a percent on their orders)

So based on what they pay people to do, which companies get the Pyramid Quack award?

One gal, Phyllis, a Tahitian Noni rep for years, told the group this:

Typical order: $120 for the Noni juice per month. Pay for getting a customer (who doesn't sell it) to buy it: 6%. That's like $5 for getting a $120 order.(!!)

With such puny pay, who'd want to go after customers? They don't, and haven't, for years, she said.

The Great Pyramid – Part Two

This pay plan tells it all: We pay you to get recruits – people who sell it. We don't care about customers who just buy it (and who don't sell it).

So, we were about to bestow upon the Tahitian Noni International pay plan, the Pyramid Quack award.

Then with great pride, she announced to the group: "But Kim, this past year they've worked to change it – because I think they heard you. As of May 1, 2006, they are paying 20% for customer orders. So now we get $24 for each of those orders!"

That's what, 3 days ago? After almost 10 years of being in business.

(This conference call will be up on the Talking about Your Great Thing podcast site later this week, so you can hear the juicy details for yourself.)

Tomorrow's blog: The story on the pay plans of two more companies: Young Living and Life Wave. Do they get the Pyramid Quack award or not?

Send in your company plan info and see if it gets the Pyramid Quack award. (Use Comments below.) Here's what info to submit:

1. What's the typical customer order amount? And what do you get (range) if you find them, front line them, and they do NOT sign on to sell anything?
2. Name of company. And YOUR NAME.

Then we'll check it out, and award the Pyramid Quack award to your company, or not.

After all, if it quacks like a pyramid...
