The Last of the Dinosaurs

The Last of the Dinosaurs by Tina Rideout

Who are the "Last of the Dinosaurs"?

In the early 70's the United States went through a manufacturing "boom". The Vietnam War was coming to an end, the economy was growing stronger, and technology was on its way to being one of the biggest industries.

Along with the advancements, good paying jobs were becoming easier to find.

Wages were steadily rising.

There was the opportunity for good retirement plans

Better health care coverage for employees and their dependents.

Then suddenly in the early 80's, it came to a streaking halt.

Many workers who had thought they had found financial security were in danger of losing all they had worked to achieve.

Some were lucky enough to hang on for the "ride", while others were not so fortunate. The "ride" has been a long one. We have yet to rekindle the "boom" of the 70's.

Today many of the workers who thought they had made it through the hard times, have either been laid off for extended periods of time or lost their jobs completely.

"The Last of the Dinosaurs" are the hardworking men and women who have found themselves searching for new careers at ages when they were planning for retirement.

Searching for new careers has not been an easy task for this group of individuals

Why??

1..Their age.

2..They are educated and experienced in their chosen fields.

The "Good News"

Technology has provided an outlet for these displaced workers. The Internet has become their lifeline. Both experienced and inexperienced computer operators have found ways to generate an income.

"How to Make Money Working from Home"

1..Research the Company you are interested in joining.

The bottom line: A Company that is successful will make you successful.

Do they have quality Products and Services?

Do they have a reliable Support System?

Do they provide training material and the tools you need to understand what you are advertising?

2..Avoid being attracted to every Company you encounter

After you become more experienced, you can add other Programs to your business.

3...Buyer Beware

If it walks like a duck, looks like a duck, its a duck!!!(not my analogy)

There are too many unscrupulous companies also operating on the Internet. Remember do your homework!!

4...Seek out members of the Company who have been successful. Ask questions, and join their forums.

5...Develop a Business Plan

Take a hard look at your financial situation. Do you have money to invest?. How much? Over what period of time?

In reality to build a successful business of any kind, you will have to invest some monies. Beware of how much and how often a Company wants you to invest money.

In conclusion do your homework!!

"We may be the Last of the Dinosaurs in industry", but through technology we have become the Businesses of the Future.

SEO Tools Poem

By John Fowler

The Last of the Dinosaurs

I am in my cave, and looking out kind of furtive, The reason being, psychologically, I am low assertive, It seems to me with dinosaurs just outside the cave, Its entirely reasonable now, to be anything but brave, But the tribal psychiatrist insists that I must face my fears, And he issued me with stones, and little wooden spears, And so I went out bravely, into the land of fools, And got quickly eaten because I lacked the proper tools.

"You see things haven't changed much," the tutor whispered sage, "Psychiatry still screws up, no matter what millennium or age",

He pauses for best effect, and to let the chuckles die, "What was needed was a plan, and the means to try." "So they tried all sorts of weapons, all sorts of cunning ruse,

But they always ended up, as just amusing little chews, And just when they were despondent, try as they might, Along came Dinosaur disaster, in a great big meteorite."

"So there's a lesson in the parable, of your cavemen of old, Don't listen to the shrinks and to anything you are told, For if you are to triumph, over the odds against the rules, You will need a bigger club, or ideally 21st century tools, We don't have dinosaurs now with which to fight, But PCs and internets where things have to be right, So ignore your Psychiatrist when problems rear their head, Just go and see your Guru, and use his tools instead."

The poem you just heard and wondered at in awe, Is a totally new creation and not cribbed from one before, And the Tutor is a Fowler, mentioned on the training pages, Who uses methods slightly more in tune to current ages, There may not be any dinosaurs lurking on your drive, But these days a super virus may be all too much alive, And though Google isn't Pterodactyl proof, it avoids bad links,

And dodgy linking areas, and your ranking quickly sinks.

So crawl out of your cave and click on the link to tools, That validate bad html and make your website cool, That check your viability and show you where you are, And put you back in charge, instead of watching from afar, Google will love you, the more you do right and sound, And these tools will pare away all that is not allowed, And should you need an expert we are here never doubt, Not with psychiatric counseling, but with proper technical clout.

One day I stepped outside my cave, and the creatures were in shock, For I hadn't brought a little spear, hadn't primed up my flintlock, Hadn't sharpened up my arrows, with my trusty longbow in tow, Hadn't brought a big pistol or a nasty grenade to throw, No I had brought a massive tank, and though it was overkill, I flattened all the bloody creatures that ever wished me ill, And so instead of cowering, like me come out clanking, And visit the Gurus tools site, and develop your prime ranking.
