The Latest Research On Male Hair Loss – New Findings Come Up Regularly

By Ash R

We all are fond of great looks and personality. Be it men or women our hair is a crucial part of our personality and none of us want to lose it. Generally women are not affected from hair loss much but men are prone to losing it. Men suffer from hair loss and within a very short period of time lose most of their hair. So if you are concerned about it, you should stop hair loss now. For many years scientists are putting in their earnest efforts to find ways for treating hair loss and preventing baldness. The latest research on male hair loss is an amalgam of medication and surgery.

Men normally suffer from male pattern baldness. During the twenties this problem appears when they start losing hair. This condition results in frontal baldness around the forehead or a shiny scalp at the center of the head. If you see the indications of this type of male baldness then seek immediate medical attention. There are two basic types of treatment for male hair loss. One is medication and another one is surgical operation on the scalp. If medication is prescribed a varied approach is adopted. Shampoos, medicines, vitamin pills, herbal therapies, etc are used to treat male pattern hair loss. Huge advances have been made with extensive research being done to produce medicines that could stop now any hair loss.

Some of the cosmetic treatments can give you results immediately by stopping now the hair loss. Obviously to gain such results you have to spend a lot for the hair loss treatment. You should consult a doctor or a dermatologist if you are losing hair and he or she would prescribe long-term medication or cosmetic surgery depending on the severity of the condition.

Best Male Hair Loss Products

By Oliver Turner

The worse part of getting older is joint aches and loss of hair. Chances of getting bald are more if you are a male and your age is more than 45. Alopecia or male pattern baldness is genetic in character. Medical hair transplants are used by many people every year with surprising results to overcome this problem. But hair transplant is the last solution of hair loss problem. Some hair loss remedies are available in the market for hair loss prevention. Moreover, you can stop hair loss with the use of best hair loss products (allopathic). With the use of hair loss products, you can simply stop hair loss, no new hair growth will occur.

Alopecia or male pattern baldness is not a scalp related problem. Alopecia occurs as a result of chemical reaction between oil glands found in the hair follicle and testosterone. When testosterone (male hormone) transforms into DHT, reaction causes follicle to shrink. But there are hair loss products available on the market, which works against the production of DHT. You must buy a hair loss product, which contains ingredients like pro-vitamin B5, saw and palmetto zinc. These kinds of hair loss product are designed to keep your hair on your head.

If you want to stop hair loss, you are recommended to use hair loss products like Propecia and Rogaine. These hair loss products are available at drug stores and you can even order Rogaine online. If it is already late and you are bald or have significant thinning, then you must think for a hair loss treatment. Medical hair restoration will be the best option for your problem. Results will be full head of natural hair. This process is not painful, but you will feel some swelling and discomfort. Your dermatologist will help you to select a hair loss product or hair transplant process, which will meet your expectations.
