The Lost Treasure Returns

The Lost Treasure Returns..by Mike Moore

About fifteen years ago I had the pleasure of teaching a young woman who was one of the most gifted high school seniors I have ever met. Not only was she brilliant in Math and Science, but she was also extremely talented in the visual arts. She could draw and paint beautifully. When Audrey graduated from university she did so with two degrees, one in fine arts and one in biochemistry. Not too many people shine brilliantly in two such different areas of study. She was gifted.

Just before her highschool graduation Audrey presented me with a wonderful gift. It was a water colour painting of a mother and her infant. A tear fell from the mother's eye as she looked lovingly at her precious child. Beneath the painting Audrey had written these words: "The love of God becomes real when, through me, it touches another." What a beautiful gift from such a sensitive, talented woman. I immediately had the piece of art framed and hung in my office.

Years passed with many moves from one office to another. Somewhere in the process of changing locations I lost the painting of the mother and child. I had no idea how I lost it or where it was and had given up hope of ever seeing it again.

Last year, after about eight years of not knowing where my treasured painting was, I received a phone call from a former colleague who said she had something of mine she thought I would like returned. It was the picture Audrey had painted for me 15 years earlier. In cleaning out a storage room she had discovered my gift. I promise I won't lose it a second time

When I reflect on what happened to my painting I am struck by how precious gifts, when lost, have a way of finding their way back to the people who treasure them the most. To any other the painting was just that, a painting. To me it spoke of a creative, intelligent, generous woman who gave her talent to me in appreciation for our paths crossing and connecting. Because of this obvious connection it found its way home to me. I have discovered this to be true of people as well. When you really love another, and you appear to lose them, they tend to find their way back to your love even if it takes years to do so. So we live in hope

I haven't heard from Audrey in many years, but I know that, before our lives are over, she will come back into my life in some way. We will meet again.

The Affiliate Game–
Find Your Own Treasure

If you're perfectly content, and just Know you've already found the potential Gold in the Affiliate Program you've chosen to market, then this WeekEnd Project may not interest you.

But for most of us, deciding what to market on the internet is much the same as a Treasure Hunt.

And any good Treasure Hunt should always begin with good research.

So, let's put on our Indiana Jones hat, grab our trusty whip..(those pesky commission bandits are everywhere!)

The Lost Treasure Returns

And go on a Scouting Expedition.

The purpose of this scouting expedition is to help you establish What Kind of Treasure You Want to Find.

What has always been your passion?

Ancient Carvings and statues made of pure gold, and embedded with rare gems, found only in the depths of a Peruvian Jungle..Priceless and Rare

Or Shipwrecks loaded with stolen coins from a pirates trove.

Lost manuscripts buried deep within the sands for untold centuries just waiting for that intrepid explorer to bring their secrets to light.

Ok..let's come back to earth (present day) for a moment..

What do we have so far? What do these bring to mind?

Antiquities, Antiques, Art, Carvings, Rare Gems, Shipwrecks, Pirates, History, Exploring, Coins, Manuscripts,
Lost and out of print books..

Whatever strikes your interest,,

If its Rare Coins..Do a search on Rare Coins..See what hundreds of Web Sites have done with their topic..

I'm reminded of an example I ran across from someone who had read a book on doing Mini Sites, and had gone on to create a series of Mini Pages on what his passion in life was.

Each Mini Page detailed a specific Rare Gem, with research and resources of where, and how to deal in the buying and selling of these gems..

He wasn't selling hype..he was selling Information that was extremely well put together with a ton of great content..

His passion in life..was Rare Gems..that was his expertise..And it showed.

The Lost Treasure Returns
